DE VALERA GOES TO LONDON THURSDAY; BELFAST RIOTS USHER IN ARMISTICE

Griffith To Accompany "President"—Sixteen Killed and 100 Wounded in Three Cornered Belfast Battle Which Was Renewed Just as Armistice Took Effect—Dublin Quiet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 11.—Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish Republic" will come to London on Thursday for a conference with Premier Lloyd George on Irish peace, it was officially announced this afternoon.

Belfast, July 11.—After a temporary lull, rioting again broke our here just before noon today. Six persons were wounded and taken to hospitals. A revised casualty list this afternoon put the dead at sixteen.

Nearly 100 persons, including several children, were wounded.

Forty-two homes, owned by Catholics, were destroyed.

The disorders developed into a three cornered battle between Orangemen, Sinn Feiners and police and there was heavy firing throughout Sunday and Sunday night in the city and suburbs.

Dublin, July 11 (noon)—The armistice between the Irish republican army and the British crown forces is now officially in effect in Ireland.

The attention of Ireland is now turned from military matters to the proposed peace conference.

Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish Republic," has received a telegram from Premier Lloyd-George saying:

"I have received your letter of acceptance and shall be happy to see you and any colleagues whom you may wish to bring with you, at Downing street any day this week."

It is believed that De Valera will be accompanied by Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein and two Unionists—Sir Maurice Dockrell and Sir Robert Woods. Richard Mulcahy, so-called chief of the general staff of the Irish republican army, said he would not go to London.

London, July 11.—Plans for the proposed Irish peace parley in London were discussed at a meeting of the British cabinet today.

London, July 11.—"At last we are going to have peace in Ireland," said King George in a speech at Guernsey today. "I am doing my best."

HAD LEFT HOME SEEKING A JOB

Four Youths, Unable to Find Work in Home Towns, Start Out on Road—Found Asleep in Day Coach on Wallkill Valley Tracks Sunday Morning.

"Just trying to find a job, Your Honor," was the plea of four youths, all under twenty years of age, this morning in police court when arraigned before Judge Schirick. They had been arrested about 2 o'clock Sunday morning by Officers Burger and Fatum, who found them asleep in a day coach on the Wallkill Valley railroad on Greenkill avenue.

From the story as told by the youths they all came from Trenton or Newark, N. J. and unable to find a job there decided to set out seeking work. Saturday afternoon the four met in the railroad yard at Union Hill and caught a ride on a freight train arriving in Kingston shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

Penniless they strolled down Greenkill avenue. They were seen and as tramps have been in the habit of stealing milk from the porches in that vicinity police headquarters were notified of the fact that four strangers were loafing around in that vicinity.

Officers Fatum and Burger when they arrived found no one in sight, but something caused them to decide to investigate the day coach. The railroad men generally lock the doors to the coaches, but evidently this one had not been locked for the quartet of work-seekers had found the door unlocked and went in.

When the officers entered the coach they found the four sprawled out sound asleep on the seats. The quartet was awakened and taken to the county jail where they finished their nap.

Judge Schirick decided to give all four another chance to get work as they appeared to be clean cut young fellows who had never been arrested before. None of the four wanted the judge to get in touch with their folks to send on money to pay their fares home as they much preferred to continue the search for a job.

PLANE ACCIDENT DEATHS NOW SIX

Lieut. Dunton Says Motor And Lever Trouble Caused Big Martin Bomber To Fall On Parked Automobiles.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Moundsville, W. Va., July 11.—One death during the night brought the fatalities to six resulting from the crash of a government-owned Martin bombing-plane into a row of parked automobiles here Sunday. Thirty-six others were injured. A coroner's investigation of the accident, one of the most serious in American aeronautics, was to be started today. Lt. C. R. MacIver, who piloted the plane, was slightly burned by flaming gasoline. Neither MacIver nor Lt. E. H. Dunton have been arrested.

The plane was bound from Cleveland to Washington and had laid over here Saturday night.

Just after the hop off yesterday the plane, which had risen but a short distance, swerved suddenly and crashed into a line of automobiles on the Ohio river bank. Then one of the gasoline tanks of the plane blew up. A minute later several automobile tanks let go. Two more of the wrecked plane's tanks exploded, scattering the burning fluid about for a considerable distance.

Lieut. C. R. McIver and Lt. E. H. Dunton were in the plane at the time of the crash. Lt. Dunton's explanation of the mishap follows:

"As we went north and the plane left the ground the left motor stopped causing the plane to swerve to the left. The velocity made it impossible to figure on the plane coming to a stop if the other motor had been shut down.

"Lt. McIver turned over to steer the plane toward the Ohio river. The control levers did not work properly or the distance was too short to swing the plane to the left to clear the crowd. The crash followed."

LEWIS'S CLAIM IS SUSTAINED

Commissioner Holds That Insurance Company is Liable for Compensation Which it Had Stopped Paying Aged Watchman Who Was Beaten Up in R-G-R Store.

One of the compensation claims which was heard before Commissioner Abbott last Friday was the claim of Albert W. Lewis, the nightwatchman who was attacked and beaten in the Rose-Gorman-Rose store last spring. Mr. Lewis was beaten up some time during the night by some unknown person and found unconscious in the basement. Although an investigation has since been going on the person who committed the assault has never been learned. Mr. Lewis was in the hospital for several weeks in a critical condition and has never been able to recall what took place. Whether the assault took place by someone who had planned to rob the store and was surprised by the aged watchman probably will never be known.

Mr. Lewis has recovered sufficiently to return home.

Chief of Police Wood Friday testified as to what had been learned during the investigation and described the finding of a long iron bar covered with blood with which the assault was committed. Vincent Gorman and others also testified as to what they found when Mr. Lewis was discovered unconscious in the basement.

D. G. Atkins, who appeared for the London Guarantee & Accident Company, carriers, opposed payment of compensation, the insurance company claiming that the assault might have been for spite or personal grudge against Mr. Lewis. The insurance company has paid compensation but later stopped payment on this ground, claiming that if this were the case they were not liable.

A. C. Connelly, who appeared for Mr. Lewis and Rose-Gorman-Rose, claimed that the company was liable for payment of compensation as the injury had been the result of an attempted burglary and assault. This view of the case was taken by Commissioner Abbott and he held that the carrier was liable for the compensation.

Mr. Lewis, who is an elderly man, was so severely beaten about the head that for a time he was not expected to recover. He has never entirely recovered from the injury and one eye is so severely injured that a bandage is necessary to keep it open since the muscles controlling the eye do not function.

Hardings Back From Outing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 11.—President and Mrs. Harding and a party of friends who spent the wek end cruising the Potomac river on the Mayflower, arrived here shortly before 8 o'clock this morning.

LLOYD-GEORGE PLEDGES BRITAIN'S SUPPORT TO HARDING'S DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE; CHINA TOO

Tells Commons That Japan, Also, Is Likely To Join In Discussion of Far East Problems and Disarmament—French Consider "German Menace" Requires That They Keep Big Military and Naval Force—Washington Views It as Master Stroke Toward Achievement of Peace Which Versailles Treaty Failed To Secure.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 11.—Premier Lloyd-George, in addressing the House of Commons this afternoon, pledged the support of the British empire to President Harding's efforts to bring about a great international conference for the discussion of the Far East problems and the reduction of armaments.

"I welcome with the utmost pleasure President Harding's wise and courteous initiative," said the premier. "The world has been looking to the United States to take such a lead. I am confident that the house will welcome it as an act of far seeing statesmanship. We wish it success and no effort will be lacking to make it so on the part of the British empire that has shared fully the liberal and progressive spirit inspiring it.

"We have not yet had a formal reply from Japan but we have reason to believe it will be in the same sense (as that from America).

"The Chinese government has also replied satisfactorily" (to the representations from Britain).

The premier began his speech by saying that he was very glad to be able to inform the members of commons that he had received the views of the United States on the Pacific and that "they were extremely satisfactory."

The gallery of the house was jammed with notable personages for the premier's speech in view of its international importance. An extraordinary number of invitations had been issued to distinguished persons. The officials refused, however, to let down the bars to foreign correspondents who sought to hear the premier.

London, July 11.—President Harding's proposal for a disarmament conference to be held in Washington has been cordially received in Great Britain and the prediction was made in responsible quarters today that Great Britain will accept.

Premier Lloyd-George was understood to have been occupied the most of the morning drafting a speech accepting President Harding's proposal.

The American ambassador, George Harvey, held a forty minute conference this morning with Marquis Curzon, the foreign secretary.

Colonel Harvey, it was learned, handed to Marquis Curzon the official text of President Harding's offer. It was reported that Premier Lloyd-George might make two replies in commons, one brief this afternoon, a second in detail on Tuesday.

Both the Chinese and Japanese ambassadors held conference with Marquis Curzon during the day.

"There can be no doubt that President Harding's proposal will be promptly and gladly accepted by the British government with the full concurrence of the dominions in the same spirit in which it was made," said the London Times.

"The task for the proposed conference will be as delicate and unless it be discerningly approached, as dangerous as that which any conference has ever essayed to discharge.

"Not even the peace conference at Paris had to face issues vaster or more fraught with great possibilities for good or evil to the world.

"If the Pacific conference be held no caution can be too great in the preparation of its agenda and in the preliminary negotiations which would be held to reach preliminary agreements upon the issues contained in the agenda.

"Only when such preliminary solutions are found can the conference be formally convoked. Otherwise it might fail and failure might be the prelude to disaster.

"President Harding's message surpasses in importance all the other current doings of whatever moment may have been attached to them.

"Addressed, as it is, to all the greatest states in the world, it is practically an appeal to the human race to have done with wars. Though it mentions the Pacific and Far Eastern problems, it goes far beyond these aims."

"Britain will respond gladly to the call," predicted the Daily Express. "Limitation of armaments and a Far Eastern settlement means permanent peace and will remove every jarring factor in Anglo-American relations, now attributable to our position towards Japan."

The Daily Telegraph called President Harding's decision "an act of the first historical significance." This newspaper added that the warmest tribute was paid in Great Britain to President Harding's earnestness of purpose and breadth of vision.

"The relation of President Harding's conference to the League of Nations must be carefuly studied," said the Daily News. "The attitude of existing members of the League depends on whether America considers President Harding's conference the nucleus of a new association of nations rivalling the League of Nations."

It is learned that Marquis Curzon summoned Colonel Harvey to the foreign office last Thursday to consider the cabled results of the conversations Sir Auckland Geddes had held with the French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors at Washington.

The foreign secretary was said to have told Col. Harvey that he considered the time ripe for President Harding to act. Col. Harvey immediately sent a cable to Washington.

The first news of President Harding's formal statement was personally given to Premier Lloyd-George at Chequers on Sunday by Col. Harvey. The dominion premiers were seated upon the lawn when Col. Harvey was announced. Lloyd-George left the party and was absent about fifteen minutes. When he returned he was accompanied by Colonel Harvey.

The American ambassador was then formally presented to the dominion premiers.

It is accepted as a foregone conclusion that the conference will be held.

Washington, July 11.—President Harding's inquiry among the world powers as to whether they will consider coming to Washington and discussing limitation of armament and the settlement of affairs in the Far East, was hailed today as the greatest single step that has been taken in the direction of international peace since the conference at Versailles failed to establish it.

If the powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan—see fit to accept the American invitation, it is likely that the coming autumn or winter will see a peace conference held in Washington which will seek to accomplish what the Paris conference failed to bring about—a clear understanding among the great nations of the world that will aim at prevention of "the next war."

Stripped of diplomatic verbiage and speaking in poker terms, President Harding's action was regarded today as constituting a "call." The responses that will have to be made to the American invitation will reveal whether the great powers have been sincere in their professed desire for an armament understanding, or whether the disarmament and the peace of the last year has been only so much international bluff.

It is accepted as a fact in Washington that at least two of the powers concerned, Great Britain and Italy, have already assured the United States of their willingness to engage in such a conference as the president has proposed.

The British have delayed renewing the Anglo-Japanese alliance with such a conference in view, and her leading statesmen already have placed themselves on record as whole heartedly in favor of the idea. The conference, if held, probably would spell the death of the alliance.

In the case of italy, similar assurances have been received. Italy is staggering under an enormous war debt, she is beset with domestic unrest, she has nothing to fear any more from her ancient enemy, Austria-Hungary, and any measures that would tend to decrease her national outlay would be doubly welcomed in Rome.

The belief prevails in Washington that if there is any hesitancy on the part of any of the powers consulted it will come from France and Japan.

France has the largest military establishment in the world today, and the reduction of armies, as well as of navies would come within the scope of the conference which President Harding has proposed. French statesmen have steadfastly maintained that French safety makes necessary such a huge standing army, and that France cannot in justice to herself and in recognition of the "German menace," consent to a reduction in these forces.

Japan is now engaged in a fast and furious armament program—both in the air and on the sea—which is designed to make the Empire of the Far East, practically the equal of any world power in a military and naval sense. This program is still far from completion. Fully as important as the armament conference itself would be the discussion of Far Eastern problems between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and China, which the president suggested as a necessary accompaniment of such a meeting.

It is assumed here that, if held, the conference would take up and seek to settle the whole array of complicated and vexing problems of the Pacific, and Far East, including Shantung, Korea, the "Open Door" in China, the Yap dispute, Japanese activities in Siberia, and the actions of both Japan and Great Britain in fortifying islands of the Pacific. This would constitute a monumental undertaking in itself.

In disarmament circles in congress today, the administration's move was hailed with approval and acclaim. Both Democrats and Republicans alike expressed gratification over the turn of events and indicated that the president would be given fullest congressional support in pursuing his course.

It was made plain however, that the United States will proceed cautiously in the matter of allowing the developments to date to affect the American naval program. The naval bill is now pending and almost on the verge of passage. Leaders indicated that for safety's sake, if for nothing else, the present bill will be pushed to passage and that no change will be contemplated for the present, at least, in the American naval program.

Paris, July 11.—France will undoubtedly welcome an international conference providing for disarmament such as is proposed by President Harding, it was stated in semi-official circles today.

Officials pointed out, however, that France may make reservations regarding the discussion of Far East and Pacific ocean issues.

The foreign office early this afternoon had not yet received the official text of President Harding's note, proposing a conference of the powers for discussion of disarmament and Far East problems.

"If France was not enthusiastic over the recent British proposals for an Anglo-French alliance, it was because we saw in the project a maneuver against America," said Henri Dejouvenel, editor of the Matin, in an article today.

"If England, as the ally of Japan, realizes her dream for a petroleum trust, at the same time assuring herself of magnificent French naval bases, she would render the American fleet useless, in the meantime having divided Europe against herself and separated America from Europe and Asia. England under those circumstances would be mistress of the Pacific as well as the Atlantic.

"The British dominions, like France, decline to serve this plan of conquest. It is a fact that, in case of war between the United States and Japan they (the British dominions) would not side with Japan even if Japan were Enland's ally."

DE VALERA GOES TO LONDON THURSDAY; BELFAST RIOTS USHER IN ARMISTICE

Griffith To Accompany "President"—Sixteen Killed and 100 Wounded in Three Cornered Belfast Battle Which Was Renewed Just as Armistice Took Effect—Dublin Quiet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 11.—Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish Republic" will come to London on Thursday for a conference with Premier Lloyd George on Irish peace, it was officially announced this afternoon.

Belfast, July 11.—After a temporary lull, rioting again broke our here just before noon today. Six persons were wounded and taken to hospitals. A revised casualty list this afternoon put the dead at sixteen.

Nearly 100 persons, including several children, were wounded.

Forty-two homes, owned by Catholics, were destroyed.

The disorders developed into a three cornered battle between Orangemen, Sinn Feiners and police and there was heavy firing throughout Sunday and Sunday night in the city and suburbs.

Dublin, July 11 (noon)—The armistice between the Irish republican army and the British crown forces is now officially in effect in Ireland.

The attention of Ireland is now turned from military matters to the proposed peace conference.

Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish Republic," has received a telegram from Premier Lloyd-George saying:

"I have received your letter of acceptance and shall be happy to see you and any colleagues whom you may wish to bring with you, at Downing street any day this week."

It is believed that De Valera will be accompanied by Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein and two Unionists—Sir Maurice Dockrell and Sir Robert Woods. Richard Mulcahy, so-called chief of the general staff of the Irish republican army, said he would not go to London.

London, July 11.—Plans for the proposed Irish peace parley in London were discussed at a meeting of the British cabinet today.

London, July 11.—"At last we are going to have peace in Ireland," said King George in a speech at Guernsey today. "I am doing my best."

TAFT IS NOW CHIEF JUSTICE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 11.—Ex-President William Howard Taft became the chief justice of the United States here today, taking the oath of office at a small ceremony devoid of formality in the office of Attorney General Daugherty.

WIS. WOMEN GET EQUAL CIVIL RIGHTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Madison, Wis., July 11,—Governor John J. Blaine, today signed the Women's Rights Bill passed by the last legislature and Wisconsin thereby became the first state in the union where women have equal rights with men under the civil law. Women from many parts of the state were present when the governor signed the measure.

The new law provides that "women shall have the same rights and privileges under the law as men in exercise of suffrage, freedom of contract, choice of residence for voting purposes, jury service, holding office, holding and conveying property, care and custody of children and in all other respects.

DEATH PLANE REPAIRED.

And Was on Way To Washington When It Fell.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 11.—The Martin bomber, which crashed at Moundsville, W. Va., causing six deaths to bystanders, had recently undergone some repairs and was not in charge of regular Martin airplane schooled aviators, Glenn L. Martin, aeroplane manufacturer, said today.

"They were not regular Martin bomber plane pilots," he said "but they were good men, I think. The ship had been at our factory about three days for minor repairs. The machine was being taken to Washington.

HAD LEFT HOME SEEKING A JOB

Four Youths, Unable to Find Work in Home Towns, Start Out on Road—Found Asleep in Day Coach on Wallkill Valley Tracks Sunday Morning.

"Just trying to find a job, Your Honor," was the plea of four youths, all under twenty years of age, this morning in police court when arraigned before Judge Schirick. They had been arrested about 2 o'clock Sunday morning by Officers Burger and Fatum, who found them asleep in a day coach on the Wallkill Valley railroad on Greenkill avenue.

From the story as told by the youths they all came from Trenton or Newark, N. J., and unable to find a job there decided to set out seeking work. Saturday afternoon the four met in the railroad yard at Union Hill and caught a ride on a freight train arriving in Kingston shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

Penniless they strolled down Greenkill avenue. They were seen and as tramps have been in the habit of stealing milk from the porches in that vicinity police headquarters were notified of the fact that four strangers were loafing around in that vicinity.

Officers Fatum and Burger when they arrived found no one in sight, but something caused them to decide to investigate the day coach. The railroad men generally lock the doors to the coaches, but evidently this one had not been locked for the quartet of work-seekers had found the door unlocked and went in.

When the officers entered the coach they found the four sprawled out sound asleep on the seats. The quartet was awakened and taken to the county jail where they finished their nap.

Judge Schirick decided to give all four another chance to get work as they appeared to be clean cut young fellows who had never been arrested before. None of the four wanted the judge to get in touch with their folks to send on money to pay their fares home as they much preferred to continue the search for a job.

PLANE ACCIDENT DEATHS NOW SIX

Lieut. Dunton Says Motor And Lever Trouble Caused Big Martin Bomber To Fall On Parked Automobiles.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Moundsville, W. Va., July 11.—One death during the night brought the fatalities to six resulting from the crash of a government-owned Martin bombing-plane into a row of parked automobiles here Sunday. Thirty-six others were injured. A coroner's investigation of the accident, one of the most serious in American aeronautics, was to be started today. Lt. C. R. MacIver, who piloted the plane, was slightly burned by flaming gasoline. Neither MacIver nor Lt. E. H. Dunton have been arrested.

The plane was bound from Cleveland to Washington and had laid over here Saturday night.

Just after the hop off yesterday the plane, which had risen but a short distance, swerved suddenly and crashed into a line of automobiles on the Ohio river bank. Then one of the gasoline tanks of the plane blew up. A minute later several automobile tanks let go. Two more of the wrecked plane's tanks exploded, scattering the burning fluid about for a considerable distance.

Lieut. C. R. McIver and Lt. E. H. Dunton were in the plane at the time of the crash. Lt. Dunton's explanation of the mishap follows:

"As we went north and the plane left the ground the left motor stopped causing the plane to swerve to the left. The velocity made it impossible to figure on the plane coming to a stop if the other motor had been shut down.

"Lt. McIver turned over to steer the plane toward the Ohio river. The control levers did not work properly or the distance was too short to swing the plane to the left to clear the crowd. The crash followed."

PVT. THOMAS'S BODY COMING

LEWIS'S CLAIM IS SUSTAINED

Commissioner Holds That Insurance Company is Liable for Compensation Which it Had Stopped Paying Aged Watchman Who Was Beaten Up in R-G-R Store.

One of the compensation claims which was heard before Commissioner Abbott last Friday was the claim of Albert W. Lewis, the nightwatchman who was attacked and beaten in the Rose-Gorman-Rose store last spring. Mr. Lewis was beaten up some time during the night by some unknown person and found unconscious in the basement. Although an investigation has since been going on the person who committed the assault has never been learned. Mr. Lewis was in the hospital for several weeks in a critical condition and has never been able to recall what took place. Whether the assault took place by someone who had planned to rob the store and was surprised by the aged watchman probably will never be known.

Mr. Lewis has recovered sufficiently to return home.

Chief of Police Wood Friday testified as to what had been learned during the investigation and described the finding of a long iron bar covered with blood with which the assault was committed. Vincent Gorman and others also testified as to what they found when Mr. Lewis was discovered unconscious in the basement.

D. G. Atkins, who appeared for the London Guarantee & Accident Company, carriers, opposed payment of compensation, the insurance company claiming that the assault might have been for spite or personal grudge against Mr. Lewis. The insurance company has paid compensation but later stopped payment on this ground, claiming that if this were the case they were not liable.

A. C. Connelly, who appeared for Mr. Lewis and Rose-Gorman-Rose, claimed that the company was liable for payment of compensation as the injury had been the result of an attempted burglary and assault. This view of the case was taken by Commissioner Abbott and he held that the carrier was liable for the compensation.

Mr. Lewis, who is an elderly man, was so severely beaten about the head that for a time he was not expected to recover. He has never entirely recovered from the injury and one eye is so severely injured that a bandage is necessary to keep it open since the muscles controlling the eye do not function.

Hardings Back From Outing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 11.—President and Mrs. Harding and a party of friends who spent the week end cruising the Potomac river on the Mayflower, arrived here shortly before 8 o'clock this morning.

LLOYD-GEORGE PLEDGES BRITAIN'S SUPPORT TO HARDING'S DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE; CHINA TOO

Tells Commons That Japan, Also, Is Likely To Join In Discussion of Far East Problems and Disarmament—French Consider "German Menace" Requires That They Keep Big Military and Naval Force—Washington Views It as Master Stroke Toward Achievement of Peace Which Versailles Treaty Failed To Secure.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 11.—Premier Lloyd-George, in addressing the House of Commons this afternoon, pledged the support of the British empire to President Harding's efforts to bring about a great international conference for the discussion of the Far East problems and the reduction of armaments.

"I welcome with the utmost pleasure President Harding's wise and courteous initiative," said the premier. "The world has been looking to the United States to take such a lead. I am confident that the house will welcome it as an act of far seeing statesmanship. We wish it success and no effort will be lacking to make it so on the part of the British empire that has shared fully the liberal and progressive spirit inspiring it.

"We have not yet had a formal reply from Japan but we have reason to believe it will be in the same sense (as that from America).

"The Chinese government has also replied satisfactorily" (to the representations from Britain).

The premier began his speech by saying that he was very glad to be able to inform the members of commons that he had received the views of the United States on the Pacific and that "they were extremely satisfactory."

The gallery of the house was jammed with notable personages for the premier's speech in view of its international importance. An extraordinary number of invitations had been issued to distinguished persons. The officials refused, however, to let down the bars to foreign correspondents who sought to hear the premier.

London, July 11.—President Harding's proposal for a disarmament conference to be held in Washington has been cordially received in Great Britain and the prediction was made in responsible quarters today that Great Britain will accept.

Premier Lloyd-George was understood to have been occupied the most of the morning drafting a speech accepting President Harding's proposal.

The American ambassador, George Harvey, held a forty minute conference this morning with Marquis Curzon, the foreign secretary.

Colonel Harvey, it was learned, handed to Marquis Curzon the official text of President Harding's offer. It was reported that Premier Lloyd-George might make two replies in commons, one brief this afternoon, a second in detail on Tuesday.

Both the Chinese and Japanese ambassadors held conference with Marquis Curzon during the day.

"There can be no doubt that President Harding's proposal will be promptly and gladly accepted by the British government, with the full concurrence of the dominions in the same spirit in which it was made," said the London Times.

"The task for the proposed conference will be as delicate and unless it be discerningly approached, as dangerous as that which any conference has ever essayed to discharge.

"Not even the peace conference at Paris had to face issues vaster or more fraught with great possibilities for good or evil to the world.

"If the Pacific conference be held no caution can be too great in the preparation of its agenda and in the preliminary negotiations which would be held to reach preliminary agreements upon the issues contained in the agenda.

"Only when such preliminary solutions are found can the conference be formally convoked. Otherwise it might fail and failure might be the prelude to disaster.

"President Harding's message surpasses in importance all the other current doings of whatever moment may have been attached to them.

"Addressed, as it is, to all the greatest states in the world, it is practically an appeal to the human race to have done with wars. Though it mentions the Pacific and Far Eastern problems, it goes far beyond these aims."

"Britain will respond gladly to the call," predicted the Daily Express. "Limitation of armaments and a Far Eastern settlement means permanent peace and will remove every jarring factor in Anglo-American relations, now attributable to our position towards Japan."

The Daily Telegraph called President Harding's decision "an act of the first historical significance." This newspaper added that the warmest tribute was paid in Great Britain to President Harding's earnestness of purpose and breadth of vision.

"The relation of President Harding's conference to the League of Nations must be carefully studied," said the Daily News. "The attitude of existing members of the League depends on whether America considers President Harding's conference the nucleus of a new association of nations rivalling the League of Nations."

It is learned that Marquis Curzon summoned Colonel Harvey to the foreign office last Thursday to consider the cabled results of the conversations Sir Auckland Geddes had held with the French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors at Washington.

The foreign secretary was said to have told Col. Harvey that he considered the time ripe for President Harding to act. Col. Harvey immediately sent a cable to Washington.

The first news of President Harding's formal statement was personally given to Premier Lloyd-George at Chequers on Sunday by Col. Harvey. The dominion premiers were seated upon the lawn when Col. Harvey was announced. Lloyd-George left the party and was absent about fifteen minutes. When he returned he was accompanied by Colonel Harvey.

The American ambassador was then formally presented to the dominion premiers.

It is accepted as a foregone conclusion that the conference will be held.

Washington, July 11.—President Harding's inquiry among the world powers as to whether they will consider coming to Washington and discussing limitation of armament and the settlement of affairs in the Far East, was hailed today as the greatest single step that has been taken in the direction of international peace since the conference at Versailles failed to establish it.

If the powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan—see fit to accept the American invitation, it is likely that the coming autumn or winter will see a peace conference held in Washington which will seek to accomplish what the Paris conference failed to bring about—a clear understanding among the great nations of the world that will aim at prevention of "the next war."

Stripped of diplomatic verbiage and speaking in poker terms, President Harding's action was regarded today as constituting a "call." The responses that will have to be made to the American invitation will reveal whether the great powers have been sincere in their professed desire for an armament understanding, or whether the disarmament and the peace of the last year has been only so much international bluff.

It is accepted as a fact in Washington that at least two of the powers concerned, Great Britain and Italy, have already assured the United States of their willingness to engage in such a conference as the president has proposed.

The British have delayed renewing the Anglo-Japanese alliance with such a conference in view, and her leading statesmen already have placed themselves on record as whole heartedly in favor of the idea. The conference, if held, probably would spell the death of the alliance.

In the case of Italy, similar assurances have been received. Italy is staggering under an enormous war debt, she is beset with domestic unrest, she has nothing to fear any more from her ancient enemy, Austria-Hungary, and any measures that would tend to decrease her national outlay would be doubly welcomed in Rome.

The belief prevails in Washington that if there is any hesitancy on the part of any of the powers consulted it will come from France and Japan.

France has the largest military establishment in the world today, and the reduction of armies, as well as of navies would come within the scope of the conference which President Harding has proposed. French statesmen have steadfastly maintained that French safety makes necessary such a huge standing army, and that France cannot in justice to herself and in recognition of the "German menace," consent to a reduction in these forces.

Japan is now engaged in a fast and furious armament program—both in the air and on the sea—which is designed to make the Empire of the Far East, practically the equal of any world power in a military and naval sense. This program is still far from completion. Fully as important as the armament conference itself would be the discussion of Far Eastern problems between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and China, which the president suggested as a necessary accompaniment of such a meeting.

It is assumed here that, if held, the conference would take up and seek to settle the whole array of complicated and vexing problems of the Pacific and Far East, including Shantung, Korea, the "Open Door" in China, the Yap dispute, Japanese activities in Siberia, and the actions of both Japan and Great Britain in fortifying islands of the Pacific. This would constitute a monumental undertaking in itself.

In disarmament circles in congress today, the administration's move was hailed with approval and acclaim. Both Democrat and Republicans [illegible] satisfaction over the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] be given [illegible] congressional support in pursuing the course.

It was made plain, however, that the United States will proceed cautiously in the matter of allowing the developments to date to affect the American naval program. The naval [illegible] bill [illegible] pushed to passage and that no change will be contemplated for the present, at least, in the American naval program.

Paris, July 11.—France will undoubtedly welcome an international conference providing for disarmament such as is proposed by President Harding, it was stated in semi-official circles today.

Officials pointed out, however, that France may make reservations regarding the discussion of Far East and Pacific ocean issues.

The foreign office early this afternoon had not yet received the official text of President Harding's note, proposing a conference of the powers for discussion of disarmament and Far East problems.

"If France was not enthusiastic over the recent British proposals for an Anglo-French alliance, it was because we saw in the project a maneuver against America," said Henri De Jouvenel, editor of the Matin, in an article today.

"If England, as the ally of Japan, realizes her dream for a petroleum trust, at the same time assuring herself of magnificent French naval bases, she would render the American fleet useless, in the meantime having divided Europe against herself and separated America from Europe and Asia. England under those circumstances would be mistress of the Pacific as well as the Atlantic.

"The British dominions, like France, decline to serve this plan of conquest. It is a fact that, in case of war between the United States and Japan they (the British dominions) would not side with Japan even if Japan were Enland's ally."

PLEAD TO GET RID OF JAPS

Far Eastern Republic Sends Note To U. S. And Allies Saying Mikado's Troops Have Supported Anti-Bolshevists And Produced Condition Of Anarchy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 11—An appeal to the United States by the Far Eastern Republic to compel Japan to withdraw her troops from Siberia "at the earliest possible date," is contained in a note handed to the American minister in Peking, the text of which reached here today. Similar notes were addressed to Great Britain and China.

The note, which was the work of M. Yourin, minister of foreign affairs of the Chita Republic, accuses Japan of instigating the coup in Vladivostok by which the anti-Bolshevist forces overthrew the existing government, and asserts that all the allied governments which sent troops into Siberia during the world war are responsible for the presence of Japanese troops in Russian domain.

Because of this common responsibility, the note declares, the allied governments, including the United States, are under obligations to compel the immediate withdrawal of the Japanese from Siberia.

The text of the note follows:

"The anti-Bolshevik elements known as the Kappelites have effected the occupation of the Za-Baikal Railroad by the help of the Japanese army and arrested leading railroad officials and clerks with a view to occupying the remainder of the line leading to Vladivostok. The attempt has failed through the opposition of the general railroad employes and farmers in the neighboring district, but as its consequence the whole district along the railroad has been plunged into an anarchic condition.

"This state of things has been brought about by the support of the Japanese army stationed in Siberia to the anti-Bolshevist elements. The Japanese army commander not only failed to take steps to disarm these anti-Bolshevists in accordance with the agreement arranged between Russia and Japan, but on the contrary has given protection and supplied arms to them. Moreover, the Japanese army disarmed the government forces at the moment of the out break of the rising of the anti-Bolshevisits in Valdivostok to afford convenience for their movement.

"The Russian people in the Far East have effected the combination and union of different elements with a view to establishing an independent democratic republic, founded a stable, legitimate government through the constitutional assembly and drafted a constitution as the basis of a republican government and formulated a plan to establish commercial relations with the powers. All those plans of the republican government have been checked and disturbed by the Japanese army unreasonably stationed in the Russian territory which gives support to the movement of lawless malcontented elements.

"The Far Eastern republican government believes the presence of the Japanese army in the Russian domain and its interference in Russian internal politics are an infringement of Russian suzerainty and that the allies who sent troops to Siberia are responsible in common for the serious consequence of the dispatch of troops. The Far Eastern republican government accordingly herewith strongly protests against the unlawful action of the Japanese army in the maritime province and wishes the ministers to transmit the present protest to the respective governments they represent.

"Meanwhile the present government believes that their respective home governments are under obligations to make efforts for making Japan withdraw her troops from Siberia at the earliest possible date."

OPEN GARBAGE CANS

Of One Collector Annoy Wall Street Residents.

For some time past the people of Wall street and other uptown streets have been annoyed by one of the private garbage collectors who collects garbage in open cans, in violation to the health laws of the city. During the recent warm spell the matter has become even worse, but the practice continues and today the woman who drives the rig was about Wall street during the morning collecting garbage. None of the cans were covered.

One of the business men of Wall street notified the collector that it was a violation of the law to collect garbage in uncovered cans but the practice has continued. The practice is not only annoying to those who pass on the streeets but is dangerous from a health viewpoint.

GETS YEAR FOR STEALING WATCH

Elmer Murdock, formerly with the Benson shows, was arrested Thursday night on a warrant sworn out by William Mauterstock, Saugerties, charging him with petit larceny. Mr. Mauterstock was in bathing in the lower creek at Saugerties on Wednesday, and while in the water, Murdock, who was in the party, went through his (Mauterstock's) clothes and took a watch and some change. The watch was valued at $15. The theft was reported to the Saugerties police. Murdock came to Rondout with a man named Brown, also connected with the Benson shows, and sold the watch in a second-hand store. Officer Scully recovered it and returned it to its owner. Murdock was later apprehended and arraigned before Judge Chidester of Saugerties. He pleaded guilty to the above charge and was sentenced to the Albany penitentiary for one year, where he was taken Saturday by Capt. A. W. Richter.

Soldiers Slain in Cork.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cork, July 11.—There was a flare-up of violence in the Cork district just before the armistice became effective. Four British soldiers who had been kidnapped yesterday were found dead today on the outskirts of the town. A retired British major was taken from his bed and shot to death.

INTEREST HIGH IN LEAGUE POOL

Says the Dairymens League News:

Not since the last milk strike has there been so much interest and discussion on the milk situation as there has been since the league paid for pooled milk for May. The chief point of discussion is over the difference which existed in some sections of league territory between the price received by the poolers and the non-poolrs for the same quality milk.

There is little or no criticism of the price itself. It is pretty generally known that the price of May milk paid by the league was better than that paid by any other organization in the country and much better than the unorganized farmers in other sections received. But it goes against human nature for a farmer, after he has joined the organization, worked paid and sacrificed for a purpose, to have his neighboring farmer who has done none of this receive all of the benefits without paying any of the cost.

However, excepting this feeling about the non-pooler, most of the poolers are satisfied, for they remember back to the days before the league in 1916 when dairy by-products were selling as low as they are now that spring milk brought anywhere from $1 per hundred downward. They know that anything which they received for their milk over $1 per per hundred is due to organization and they know that all the concentrated effort which the milk dealers are making to create dissatisfaction by comparing prices between poolers and non-poolers and otherwise has but the one object, to break the organization so that all milk can again be bought on a butter and cheese basis.

Members of the co-operative association know also that they compose a majority of the dairymen of this section and that therefore in the long run a majority having an organization and all the facilities for doing business is in a much stronger and safer position than those who are not in the organization, even though the non-poolers are temporarily reaping an advantage.

JUDGE CLEARWATER ADDS

Rare Piece to His Metropolitan Museum Collection.

A new and rare piece of silver, a coffee pot by Ephraim Brasher, a celebrated New York silversmith, has just been added by Judge Clearwater to his fine collection of American Colonial silver in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, say the New ork Times of July 10. The name of the maker, Ephraim Brasher, appears in the New York directory from 1786 to 1805. He was a member of the Gold and Silversmiths' Society and he made the die for the famous gold doubloon, known by his name, a specimen of which recently sold in Philadelphia for some $4,000. His brother, Abraham Brasher, was an officer in the Continenial army, wrote many popular ballads of the Revolutionary period, and was a constant contributor to the newspapers.

Judge Clearwater's collection of Colonial silver in the Metropolitan Museum, to which he is constantly adding, is a magnificent one and the coffee pot is worthy of it. It s 13½ inches high, weighs 44 ounces, exclusive of the ebony handle, has a curved body, the spout is elaborate and curved, the cover has an urn-shaped finial, and there is a decoration of an engraved medallion urrounded by a wreath with a ribbon forming a true lover's knot. The maker's mark, the name "Brasher" and "N. York," are on the bottom.

COP ROUTED

When He Went To Arrest Nude Girl Bathers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., July 11.—Baltimore county police received word that a group of young women, with a view of escaping the heat wave, were bathing near Lake Roland, without even the conventional bathhouse locker key dangling from their wrists. A patrolman was despatched to investigate. Before making the "raid" the cop took up a vantage spot and got an "eyefull." One of the girls screamed for help. The cop rushed from his place of concealment, with visions of a Carnegie medal, but instead of making a gallant rescue he was dropped into the water by the girls and given a ducking and afterward pelted with mud and stones. Scrambling from the water, the policeman beat a hasty retreat without making any arrests.

Unpaid City Taxes.

City Treasurer Pardee, in keeping with the requirements of the city charter, is making up a list of unpaid last year's school taxes and this year's general taxes preparatory to advertising them for sale on August 1, if not paid prior to that date. It is estimated by City Treasurer Pardee that many of the delinquents will pay their taxes before the first of the month and save themselves additional penalties.

Rumor Has Greeks Moving.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 11.—It is persistently reported in Athens that the Greek offensive against the Turkish in Anaolia is extending, said an Athens despatch to the Daily Telegraph. Greek officials refuse to confirm that a general movement against the Turks is under way.

AT THE THEATERS.

Pearl White at Keeney's—Grace Darmond at Auditorium.

"Beyond Price," a comedy, is at Keeney's tonight. Pearl White, the star, wishes to be the wife of a millionaire; she wishes to be a famous woman; she wishes to have her arms around a baby's neck. In the play all her wishes are granted and it all comes to pass because she has been neglected by her husband, who gives all his thoughts to his business. "Astray From the Steerage" is the Mack Sennett comedy attraction. Tuesday, "Love, Honor and Obey," with an all star cast.

A rushing drama on the flaming frontier is the attraction at the Auditorium tonight entitled "The Beautiful Gambler," starring beautiful Grace Darmond. The story shows the return of a husband believed to be dead, his murder and the trial by which the girl makes her greatest sacrifice to save the man she loves. "The Life of Reilly" is the comedy attraction. Tuesday the Auditorium will offer the sensational western star Buck Jones in "Straight From the Shoulder," a thrilling western photodrama where quick wit and a handy gun are the best friends of a honest-to-goodness cowboy.

AUTO BUS FIRE EARLY SUNDAY

George Weiss of Harrison, N. J., is in the Kingston City Hospital with serious injuries sustained when the big auto bus he was driving caught fire and was badly wrecked on Abeel street about 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. Weiss was driving the bus which carried twenty men who were enroute to Shandaken to work for the Ulen Construction Company. The bus was not working well and Mr. Weiss decided to investigate and see what was the trouble. He drove up to the curb in front of the residence of John Schick at No. 165 Abeel street, and while he was under the car the twenty men remained on board laughing and joking among themselves.

Mr. Weiss had an oil lamp which he set on the curb and it is thought that the fumes from the bus feed pipe became ignited by the oil lamp and suddenly a sheet of flame shot out from under the car enveloping the truck.

The twenty men leaped out in a mad scramble leaving behind in the car their tools and outer coats. One of the twenty happened to remember that Weiss was under the car and pulled him out badly burned. Police headquarters were notified and an alarm of fire turned in from Box 28 to which the firemen responded.

Weiss was removed to the hospital in the amblance.

The Schick building was scorched by the flames from the burning auto, but the firemen extinguished the fire before the house was damaged to any extent. The big truck was badly damaged by the fire, the body being entirely consumed. It was taken in charge by the fire department.

Later in the morning arrangements were made to take the twenty passengers on to Shandaken.

In spite of the early hour a large crowd collected at the scene of the fire.

FIRE IN BARN.

Slight Downs Street Blaze Thought Incendiary.

An alarm of fire rung in from box 64 at 12:20 this morning called fire companies to 173 Downs street, where a barn at the rear of the lot owned by Harry Stewart was on fire. The damage was slight the fire being between the siding at the back end of the barn. It was quickly extinguished by the firemen. A trotting horse owned by Val. Schirick, barber at 610 Broadway was in the barn but was gotten out safely. It is thought by the people of the neighborhood that the building was set on fire.

A Croquet Set Needed.

With some thirty girls at the Girl Scout Camp at Ideal Park, all having a jolly, happy, wholesome time, there seems to be just one thing needed. If the girls had a croquet set they could get no end of enjoyment out of the same. Possibly some one would be willing to lend a set for the use of the Girl Scouts, and if so, will they please notify Miss Davis, at her office in the County building, 74 John street, telephone 1632, and a way will be provided for getting the same to the camp.

Lake Mohonk Team Wins.

McCreery's All Stars of Kingston were beaten by the Mohonk team Saturday. The grounds being very heavy caused a number of errors on both sides. Caunitz and Davis were the batteries for the All Stars, while Cragin and Juckart officiated for the home team. McCreery was the manager for the Mohonk team during the 1920 season and he had no reason to think they had lost any of their pep under the present management.

CHANGE FROM TAILORED SUIT

A winsome change from the strictly tailored suit is this model of platinum gray, with self-toned embroidery.

CUT OF THE NEW NEGLIGEES

Mandarin Style of Garment Is Slightly Shaped by Means of Gathers Under Arms.

A good many negligees are made of black satin in the style of oriental robes, being hand painted instead of embroidered. Those that are not hand-painted are lined with a bright color to supply a contrast. For instance, a negligee of black satin may be lined with gold or cerise.

There are several different styles among these oriental models of black satin. One especially is distinctly new and interesting, not only for its style, but for its simplicity. When on, the corsage has a shawl effect, as the two sides cross in surplice fashion, passing through a slit at one side, to tie, and hang in long sash ends. No sleeves are required in this negligee, as the surplice sections extend over the arm somewhat like a kimono sleeve, and while the garment is collarless, it has turnback revers at the front showing the colored lining.

The mandarin style of negligee is slightly shaped by means of gathers under the arm. These negligees are decorated in hand-painted motifs, in striking designs and colorings, with touches of embroidery combined with the painting.

An unusual robe of zenana cloth has all the edges scalloped and buttonholed in white chenille. The collar is deeply pointed at the back and at the front there is a full-length panel, narrow and plastron-like at the top, and widening out to extend over the hips below the waistline. The scalloping continues on these panels, which button down with large pearl buttons. This style is also made in crepe and black charmeuse. Some of the Japanese negligees are embroidered in Japanese scenic floral designs, usually worked in a loose darning stitch and combined with hand painting.

THE FRILLS OF FASHION

It may be painting the rose, but one of the liveliest of vestees in an imported suit was made from rich-colored Japanese embroidery. Its heavy flower patterns were brought out by a white silk floss outline.

Plumetis is a new dotted swiss, and a most effective afternoon frock material which shows small printed nosegay patterns as well as the embroidered dots. This is to be had in a wide variety of delicate colorings.

Honey dew is the color which brought back macrame lace. An overblouse of honey dew crepe de chine is gathered into a deep band of lace which fits slightly at the waistline. A two-tone ribbon runs through the band and ties at one side in long loops and streamers.

The new drop-stitch voiles are fine and sheer and adapt themselves readily to the making of soft, youthful afternoon frocks. These voiles are a most colorful collection indeed, in such shades as lemon, yellow saffron, jade, orchid, old blue, shell pink, coral, flamingo and platinum.

Mirage organdies come principally in the pastel shades and show a ring, a dot or a small square of a slightly paler shade than the material itself, the figure resembling a stamp and not being of the printed variety. Other mirage organdies have overwork of dainty embroidery or chain stitching. A striking pattern on rose-colored mirage organdie had crossing lines of chain stitching in white which formed 2-inch checks.

A simple tea frock entirely different is a negligee which might be characterized as a tea frock, so simple is it in line. It is a short slipover of claret satin, flares at the back and front, leaving the fullness to be concentrated at the sides. Sleeves, cut in one with the main portion, are very full, but so draped as to fit the wrist closely. The only trimming applied consists of small squares of oriental embroidery, just above the waistline at the front.

Why Rich Men Want More.

The reason a rich man is never satisfied with the size of his fortune is not necessarily because he has acquired a kind of hog instinct, but rather because his knowledge of affairs and his breadth of vision have grown until he sees bigger and bigger things that he wishes to do; and his ambition to accomplish is always a few leads ahead of his capital. The richest men in the world are usually the heaviest borrowers, because they are in a position to see the most to be done. Hence any man setting out to get rich might as well recognize at the beginning, that from the very nature of things, he can never hope to feel that he has enough.—Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business.

Cultivate Observation.

Observation is a quality that is easy to cultivate if you make up your mind to do so. Try to notice the birds and beasts, the men and things you see every day. Ask yourself at night what you have seen during the day. At first your answers will be very short, but soon you will find that you are beginning really to see things. It is not difficult, and it is well worth while. Allied with observation is the power of imagination. The first enables us to see things as they are; by means of the second we see things as they might be. Imagination makes use not of the outward eye, but of the mind's eye.

Here's Marvelous Dinner Dish.

The great national dish of Korea is cooksu. To make it, you plunge a large lump of ice into a bowl partly filled with steaming vermicelli of the endless variety. Over this you pour a portion of hot beef stew. The ice congeals the beef fat into little islands of grease, and you never know whether the portion dangling from the end of your chopsticks will be icy cold or burning hot. The vermicelli, which is very tough, is to be lifted to the mouth with the chopsticks. Keeping a firm hold on it with the lips and teeth, you slip the chopsticks down to lift again and take up the slack by sucking.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

For those whose meat products are somewhat or entirely restricted the following recipe will be found welcome:

Peanut Roast.—Mix thoroughly two cupfuls of peanut butter with one cupful of milk. Add four well-beaten eggs. Stir in one quart of slightly toasted breadcrumbs, two grated onions, two cupfuls of hot mashed potatoes, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful of summer savory. Bake one hour in a well-greased bread tin. Serve garnished with parsley and moles of cranberry jelly.

Onion Fritters.—Soak one pound of stale bread in cold water until soft, squeeze dry and separate with a fork. Meanwhile have a pound of onions boiled, drained and mashed; mix with salt and pepper, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a teaspoonful of thyme. Form into little cakes and dip in flour. Fry in hot fat.

Nut Chops.—Trim crusts of bread, (whole wheat), spread with peanut butter and cut in oblong pieces. Dip in egg, add six tablespoonfuls of cream, dip in cracker crumbs, place in a buttered pan and bake until brown.

Beef Red Hot.—Cut roast beef or pork in thin slices. Slice thin sweet red peppers and firm ripe tomatoes. Slice one onion thin and brown in butter. Into a baking dish put a layer of meat, a layer of tomato and pepper with seasoning of salt, pepper and paprika for each layer. Over all pour a sauce made from the gravy of the meat, the butter from the frying of the onions. Add a little curry or chutney and a dash of cayenne. Bake in the oven thirty minutes or until well browned over the top.

New Carrots, Peas and Onions.—Cook together new peas, diced new carrots and small white onions until all are cooked. Add a bit of diced cooked bacon, a little milk and seasoning of salt and cayenne and serve hot.

Strawberry Pie.—Bake a pastry shell and when cold fill with crushed sweetened strawberries, top with sweetened whipped cream, chill and serve.

Thought Cardinal Undernourished.

Cardinal Manning was extremely thin and emaciated. His eminence was visiting a convent in Liverpool where an Irishwoman was cook. She was presented to the cardinal, and, after receiving his blessing, she looked up at him, and said: "May the Lord preserve your eminence, and oh, may God forgive your cook!"

Machine That Harvests Rice.

As rice has to be harvested in water, it was thought to be work which would always have to be done by human labor, but a machine has been invented which moves through the deep mud and gathers the grain. It is capable of performing many of the duties of the ordinary tractor.

"Ha! ha!" says "Stubby," smiling, as you can plainly see by the photograph. "Maybe there's something in this dog's life they talk about, after all! General Pershing just pinned a medal on me. A., with three bones a day and a place to sleep guaranteed. Pretty soft. What?" That's the way "Stubby" feels about it all. "Stubby," a bull terrier, went through the world war with veterans of the One Hundred and Second Infantry, has been wounded and is the wearer of three service stripes. "Stubby's" latest medal came from the Humane Education Society and was presented by General Pershing at Washington.

PLEAD TO GET RID OF JAPS

Far Eastern Republic Sends Note To U. S. And Allies Saying Mikado's Troops Have Supported Anti-Bolshevists And Produced Condition Of Anarchy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 11—An appeal to the United States by the Far Eastern Republic to compel Japan to withdraw her troops from Siberia "at the earliest possible date," is contained in a note handed to the American minister in Peking, the text of which reached here today Similar notes were addressed to Great Britain and China

The note, which was the work of M. Yourin, minister of foreign affairs of the Chita Republic, accuses Japan of instigating the coup in Vladivostok by which the anti-Bolshevist forces overthrew the existing government, and asserts that all the allied governments which sent troops into Siberia during the world war are responsible for the presence of Japanese troops in Russian domain.

Because of this common responsibility, the note declares, the allied governments, including the United States, are under obligations to compel the immediate withdrawal of the Japanese from Siberia.

The text of the note follows:

"The anti-Bolshevik elements known as the Kappelites have effected the occupation of the Za-Baikal Railroad by the help of the Japanese army and arrested leading railroad officials and clerks with a view to occupying the remainder of the line leading to Vladivostok. The attempt has failed through the opposition of the general railroad employes and farmers in the neighboring district, but as its consequence the whole district along the railroad has been plunged into an anarchic condition

"This state of things has been brought about by the support of the Japanese army stationed in Siberia to the anti-Bolshevist elements. The Japanese army commander not only failed to take steps to disarm these anti-Bolshevists in accordance with the agreement arranged between Russia and Japan, but on the contrary has given protection and supplied arms to them Moreover, the Japanese army disarmed the government forces at the moment of the out break of the rising of the anti-Bolshevists in Valdivostok to afford convenience for their movement

"The Russian people in the Far East have effected the combination and union of different elements with a view to establishing an independent democratic republic, founded a stable, legitimate government through the constitutional assembly and drafted a constitution as the basis of a republican government and formulated a plan to establish commercial relations with the powers All those plans of the republican government have been checked and disturbed by the Japanese army unreasonably stationed in the Russian territory which gives support to the movement of lawless malcontented elements.

"The Far Eastern republican government believes the presence of the Japanese army in the Russian domain and its interference in Russian internal politics are an infringement of Russian suzerainty and that the allies who sent troops to Siberia are responsible in common for the serious consequence of the dispatch of troops. The Far Eastern republican government accordingly herewith strongly protests against the unlawful action of the Japanese army in the maritime province and wishes the ministers to transmit the present protest to the respective governments they represent.

"Meanwhile the present government believes that their respective home governments are under obligations to make efforts for making Japan withdraw her troops from Siberia at the earliest possible date."

OPEN GARBAGE CANS

Of One Collector Annoy Wall Street Residents.

For some time past the people of Wall street and other uptown streets have been annoyed by one of the private garbage collectors who collects garbage in open cans, in violation to the health laws of the city. During the recent warm spell the matter has become even worse, but the practice continues and today the woman who drives the rig was about Wall street during the morning collecting garbage. None of the cans were covered.

One of the business men of Wall street notified the collector that it was a violation of the law to collect garbage in uncovered cans but the practice has continued. The practice is not only annoying to those who pass on the streets but is dangerous from a health viewpoint.

GETS YEAR FOR STEALING WATCH

Elmer Murdock, formerly with the Penson shows, was arrested Thursday night on a warrant sworn out by William Mauterstock, Saugerties, charging him with petit larceny. Mr. Mauterstock was in bathing in the lower creek at Saugerties on Wednesday, and while in the water, Murdock, who was in the party, went through his (Mauterstock's) clothes and took a watch and some change. The watch was valued at $45. The theft was reported to the Saugerties police. Murdock came to Rondout with a man named Brown, also connected with the Benson shows, and sold the watch in a second-hand store. Officer Scully recovered it and returned it to its owner. Murdock was later apprehended and arraigned before Judge Chidester of Saugerties. He pleaded guilty to the above charge and was sentenced to the Albany penitentiary for one year, where he was taken Saturday by Capt. A. W. Richter.

Soldiers Slain in Cork.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cork, July 11.—There was a flare-up of violence in the Cork district just before the armistice became effective. Four British soldiers who had been kidnapped yesterday were found dead today on the outskirts of the town. A retired British major was taken from his bed and shot to death.

INTEREST HIGH IN LEAGUE POOL

Says the Dairymens League News:

Not since the last milk strike has there been so much interest and discussion on the milk situation as there has been since the league paid for pooled milk for May. The chief point of discussion is over the difference which existed in some sections of league territory between the price received by the poolers and the non-poolers for the same quality milk.

There is little or no criticism of the price itself. It is pretty generally known that the price of May milk paid by the league was better than that paid by any other organization in the country and much better than the unorganized farmers in other sections received. But it goes against human nature for a farmer, after he has joined the organization, worked, paid and sacrificed for a purpose, to have his neighboring farmer who has done none of this receive all of the benefits without paying any of the cost.

However, excepting this feeling about the non-pooler, most of the poolers are satisfied, for they remember back to the days before the league in 1916 when dairy by-products were selling as low as they are now that spring milk brought anywhere from $1 per hundred downward. They know that anything which they received for their milk over $1 per per hundred is due to organization and they know that all the concentrated effort which the milk dealers are making to create dissatisfaction by comparing prices between poolers and non-poolers and otherwise has but the one object, to break the organization so that all milk can again be bought on a butter and cheese basis.

Members of the co-operative association know also that they compose a majority of the dairymen of this section and that therefore in the long run a majority having an organization and all the facilities for doing business is in a much stronger and safer position than those who are not in the organization, even though the non-poolers are temporarily reaping an advantage.

JUDGE CLEARWATER ADDS

Rare Piece to His Metropolitan Museum Collection.

A new and rare piece of silver, a coffee pot by Ephraim Brasher, a celebrated New York silversmith, has just been added by Judge Clearwater to his fine collection of American Colonial silver in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, say the New ork Times of July 10. The name of the maker, Ephraim Brasher, appears in the New York directory from 1786 to 1805. He was a member of the Gold and Silversmiths' Society and he made the die for the famous gold doubloon known by his name, a specimen of which recently sold in Philadelphia for some $4,000. His brother, Abraham Brasher, was an officer in the Continental army, wrote many popular ballads of the Revolutionary period, and was a constant contributor to the newspapers.

Judge Clearwater's collection of Colonial silver in the Metropolitan Museum, to which he is constantly adding, is a magnificent one and the coffee pot is worthy of it. It s 13¼ inches high, weighs 44 ounces, exclusive of the ebony handle, has a curved body, the spout is elaborate and curved, the cover has an urn-shaped finial, and there is a decoration of an engraved medallion surrounded by a wreath with a ribbon forming a true lover's knot. The maker's mark, the name "Brasher" and "N. York," are on the bottom.

COP ROUTED

When He Went To Arrest Nude Girl Bathers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., July 11.—Baltimore county police received word that a group of young women, with a view of escaping the heat wave, were bathing near Lake Roland, without even the conventional bathhouse locker key dangling from their wrists. A patrolman was despatched to investigate. Before making the "raid" the cop took up a vantage spot and got an "eyefull." One of the girls screamed for help. The cop rushed from his place of concealment, with visions of a Carnegie medal, but instead of making a gallant rescue he was dropped into the water by the girls and given a ducking and afterward pelted with mud and stones. Scrambling from the water, the policeman beat a hasty retreat without making any arrests.

Unpaid City Taxes.

City Treasurer Pardee, in keeping with the requirements of the city charter, is making up a list of unpaid last year's school taxes and this year's general taxes preparatory to advertising them for sale on August 1, if not paid prior to that date. It is estimated by City Treasurer Pardee that many of the delinquents will pay their taxes before the first of the month and save themselves additional penalties.

Rumor Has Greeks Moving.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 11.—It is persistently reported in Athens that the Greek offensive against the Turkish in Anatolia is extending, said an Athens despatch to the Daily Telegraph. Greek officials refuse to confirm that a general movement against the Turks is under way.

AT THE THEATERS.

Pearl White at Keeney's—Grace Darmond at Auditorium.

"Beyond Price," a comedy, is at Keeney's tonight. Pearl White, the star, wishes to be the wife of a millionaire; she wishes to be a famous woman; she wishes to have her arms around a baby's neck. In the play all her wishes are granted and it all comes to pass because she has been neglected by her husband, who gives all his thoughts to his business. "Astray From the Steerage" is the Mack Sennett comedy attraction. Tuesday, "Love, Honor and Obey," with an all star cast.

A rushing drama on the flaming frontier is the attraction at the Auditorium tonight entitled "The Beautiful Gambler," starring beautiful Grace Darmond. The story shows the return of a husband believed to be dead, his murder and the trial by which the girl makes her greatest sacrifice to save the man she loves "The Life of Reilly" is the comedy attraction. Tuesday the Auditorium will offer the sensational western star Buck Jones in "Straight From the Shoulder," a thrilling western photodrama where quick wit and a handy gun are the best friends of a honest-to-goodness cowboy.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 11, 1921.

MUZZLING VOTERS.

If the dangerous growth of radicalism in Kingston is the excuse of the common council and mayor for attempting to regulate public speech in this city, they ought to be able to support their argument with facts and figures.

The vote on governor is the basis of all political estimates and computations.

In the past decade there have been many political spasms masquerading under the names of political parties but during all the time there have been the three big parties now in control — Republican, Prohibition, Democratic.

In 1916, in addition to the three principal political parties, candidates for governor were nominated by the American, Socialist and Social-Labor parties.

In 1918 the American party had disappeared, although two years before it was important enough to include John D. Schoonmaker of this city as a Presidential elector. The Socialist and Social-Labor parties continued.

In 1920 the Socialist and Social-Labor parties again appeared in the field with the addition of the Farmer-Labor party headed by Dudley Field Malone.

The vote for governor by these parties in Kingston during this period, and the total vote of the city for all candidates for governor, was as follows:

	1916	1918	1920
American	1	..	..
Socialist	26	55	56
Social-Labor	3	8	6
Farmer-Labor	..	..	44
Total radical vote	30	63	106
Total city vote	5,524	6,303	10,100

The growth of radicalism, Bolshevism and anarchy in Kingston shown above was made while federal and state sedition laws were in effect and while prosecutions were being had under those laws. At no time, however, was there any attempt by federal or state authorities to rob the people of their constitutional right of free speech.

With an aldermanic-mayoralty attempt to muzzle the people and regulate their public speech by requiring a permit from the mayor, will the radical-Bolshevist-anarchist vote grow smaller or larger?

NOT IN KINGSTON.

According to a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune, President Harding matched pennies with fourteen senators with whom he took luncheon at the Capitol Thursday to decide who should pay. The President's luck was with him. Senator Wadsworth of New York was "stuck" for the price of the luncheon for the entire party. Aside from the awful sinfulness of matching pennies, which probably will be prohibited in Kingston if appropriate ordinances have not been adopted already, such an occurrence would be impossible here. The Capitol restaurant is a place to which the public are invited or have access, just like the restaurants and hotel dining rooms of Kingston. Even if President Harding and fourteen senators should come to Kingston, they could not repeat Thursday's penny-matching because fifteen people certainly constitute a "gathering, assemblage or demonstration," which Kington's common council has decreed shall not be held in any place within the city "to which the public are invited or have access" unless it has been "authorized by a written permit from the mayor." Such is the Kingston ordinance.

"SIT TIGHT."

There are times when you feel that you have been outraged and that you are justified in doing anything to get even. This feeling has come to most persons some time or another, but the wise plan is do nothing because if you do it is ten to one that you will do that which you will regret. There is no doubt about it, for the one who has tried to get even and has gotten even this way seldom fails to admit eventually that it was a mistake and often a serious one.

For some reason it seems to be the lot of everybody to be hurt badly at some period and naturally the first thought that comes to mind is to strike back. The foolishness of adopting this impulse is proved by the very fact that no person has good judgment when in the throes of despair. The truth is judgment then is the very worst, and to act at such a time can only bring remorse. Getting even, as a rule is the most costly practice anybody can follow.

Big men, men in public life, learn by experience to guard against an outburst of temper. Some of them have learned by experience that nothing is ever gained by it, even though there are those who will concede that there may have been justification. In the long run it does not pay and it would be difficult to find one person who would say that he was glad that he got even. Your first thought is to do it, but if you will wait until you cool down you will almost invariably be satisfied that you retained your poise and that you avoided that which was sure to add to your distress instead of soothing the hurt.

The expression, "sit tight," was probably phrased by some one who might have been justified in getting even but who had the good sense to see that there was nothing to be accomplished by doing anything more than waiting. It is difficult but the fact remains that the man who answers or engages in any argument when he is ugly always looms up at his worst, because just then he is without judgment. When something stings it may not always be necessary to forget it, but there is wisdom in not acting right on the moment. There is some philosophy in "sit tight" even though it does not offer elegance of diction, because if you do you will never have any cause to apologize even to yourself for doing what you know you should not have done.

AN UNEXPECTED PARDON.

Franz J. Feinler went to France as a chaplain in the United States army. He was sent back for treasonable utterances and propaganda among our soldiers in favor of Germany. Notwithstanding this pointed warning, he continued his propaganda, defended the sinking of the Lusitania and the shooting of Edith Cavell, and even urged the men in his charge to refuse to fight the Germans. Finally, in 1918, this bold and insolent agent of Germany attached to our army was tried by court-martial, sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment, and the sentence was confirmed by the reviewing authority. After serving three years he was liberated on parole, and then, no great while afterward, he was pardoned—all before we were even formally at peace with Germany.

It is said that Secretary Weeks recommended that pardon on the ground that Feinler had suffered enough, but it may well be doubted whether the country generally agrees with him, judging from the comments. "It is doubtful," says one surprised and disapproving editor, "if the liberation of a criminal like Feinler either wins or retains a single vote, but it is sure to cost the loss of a lot of them. That is something politicians seem to be unable to see." It is pertinent to add that, though the war has been over nearly three years and we have now declared peace by Congressional resolution, we may have another war and treason is still treason.

The corporation counsel of the city of Kingston is its legal adviser. If he is not already familiar with Section Three of Kingston's new gag-law, he ought to read it. It says: "No person shall participate in any parade, gathering, assemblage or demonstration upon any street, square, park or other public place within the city to which the public are invited or have access, which parade, gathering, assemblage or demonstration has not been authorized by a written permit from the mayor." Question to the corporation counsel: "When the fire alarm sounds, are crowds prohibited from assembling at the scene of the fire? If not, what is the meaning of Section Three?"

We know why Kingston was burned by British soldiers and the date. It was burned on October 17, 1777, because America was fighting against the oppression of Great Britain and Kingston was "a hotbed of Rebels," as the British soldiers called our liberty-loving ancestors. We would now like to know why the liberty of speech and assembly for which our ancestors fought must be denied to their descendants unless "authorized by a written permit from the mayor."

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

Copyright 1921. By HOUGHTON MIFFLIN CO.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Why do some transplanted seedlings take root much better than others?
2. What is meant by saying antlers are "in the velvet?"
3. Why do domesticated wild geese eat more charcoal, in confinement, than others?

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What is the average normal temperature of cold-blooded creatures?

By cold blooded, we mean blood th[illegible] keep a standard nor[illegible]e, like that of mam[illegible]ds. "Cold" blood [illegible]surrounding atmos[illegible] fish swimming in cold water take on the temperature of the medium in which they move. Snakes take the temperature of the air, if land varieties.

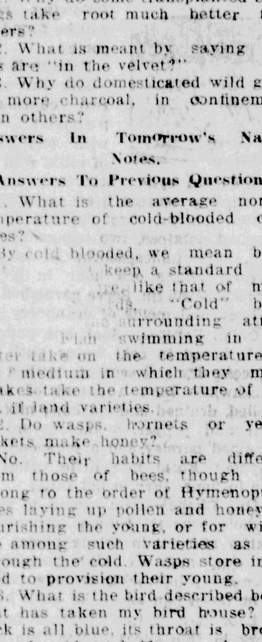
2. Do wasps, hornets or yellow jackets make honey?

No. Their habits are different from those of bees, though both belong to the order of Hymenoptera. Bees laying up pollen and honey for nourishing the young, or for winter use among such varieties as live through the cold. Wasps store insect food to provision their young.

3. What is the bird described below that has taken my bird house? Its back is all blue, its throat is brownish red. About half way along its under parts are brownish red and the rest is gray. It has a few brown streaks across its breast. Its bill is a black color.

A good description of a blue bird sent evidently by a child. Bluebirds are members of the thrush family, and the young will show the breast spots characteristic of thrushes.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Good Business Costume.

Ladies shirt waist 3484, and ladies skirt, 3475 are here portrayed. The skirt is cut in 7 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36 inches waist measure. The waist in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The waist will require 3 yards of 38 inch material for a 38 inch size. The skirt will require 3 yards of 40 inch material.

Serge, twill, cheviot, check or plaid suiting, linen or velveteen could be used for the skirt. For the waist one might chose washable satin, linen, madras or crepe. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 yards (with plaits extended).

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 12c for each pattern in coin or stamps.

New England Place Names.

An interesting set of New England ace names is drawn from the Bible. these names, quite as much as in ose brought from the home land, the rly settlers expressed their deepest ives. Hebron, Gilead, Lebanon, Ca- an, Bethlehem, Sharon, Mt. Carmel, shen, and Jerusalem are found in nnecticut alone. The names of ree women in the parish register of e of these towns were Obedience, lence, and Mindwell. Clearly, these ople had never read, or at least be- ved, Shakespeare's "What's in a me?"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 11.—The stock market opened irregular this morn- ing, but trading was much smaller in volume than last week. Mexican Pe- troleum declined ½ to 93¾. General Asphalt advanced ¼ to 47¾. Cana- dian Pacific rose ½ to 110½. Royal Dutch advanced ½ to 54½. Ameri- can Sugar Refining rose 1¼ to 65⅞. Studebaker advanced ½ to 79¾. U. S. Steel declined ¼ to 73⅞ and Bethlehem Steel "B" ad- vanced ½ to 48½.

Famous players was actively trad- ed in, yielding ¾ to 49½ and then recovered to 50½. Similar recessions occurred in nearly all the other active issues. Sears-Roebuck was in supply falling to a new low record of 63. In- ternational Harvester broke to a an- other new low record of 72⅝.

Although a number of issues were in good demand throughout the fore- noon, the most important features were the sharp declines in many of the industrial specialties, some of which again broke to new low rec- ords. Sears Roebuck was in supply, falling 2½ points to 62½ and In- ternational Harvester yielded 3 points to 47¼. Atlantic Gulf was in demand, moving up nearly 2 points to 23¾. Famous Players was also heavily sold, yielding 3 points to 47¼. U. S. Steel rose from 73¾ to 74¼ and Baldwin Locomotive sold up to 75. Studebaker was steady, advancing 1 point to 80¼. The railroad stocks were fractionally lower.

A number of stocks were strong throughout the afternoon but deal- ings still continued on an extremely small scale. The rubber issues were a weak exception, U. S. Rubber fall- ing to 47¾ and Ajax Rubber drop- ped 3 points to 18.

The market closed irregular; gov- ernment bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

AIREDALE DOG NOT SCOTCH

Breed Had Its Origin in Yorkshire, England, and Is a Comparative Newcomer.

Your airedale is not a Scotch dog. He is not of Scotch ancestry and no blood of Scotch dogs flows in his veins. He is an Irish and English dog. The name of his breed does not come from the County Ayr in Scot- land, but from the River Aire in Yorkshire, England. Nor is the aire- dale an old breed of dog, as such things are measured in the dog world. It is neither an old family nor a "first family" among dogs. The aire- dale is a newcomer. Dogs of this breed were first exhibited at Shipley, in Yorkshire in 1876, and they were then called, not airedale, but "water- side terriers." These dogs were pro- duced by crossing an English otter hound with an Irish terrier, believed to have been a red terrier, and later adding a dash of bull terrier blood. The combination produced a dog sec- ond to no other dog in intelligence, bravery, gameness in a fight, loyalty to his master and his master's family, and kindliness to children.

The word "airedale," as the name of this new kind of dog, was first used in 1883 at the national dog show at Birmingham, England, where these entries were described as "airedales or waterside terriers." The name "waterside terriers" fell into disuse. The English Kennel club was slow and conservative in recognizing this as a new and distinct breed of dog, but referred to them as "broken- haired terriers."

TRACE INSTITUTION TO ADAM

Ancient and Honorable Order of Henpecked Husbands Claims First Man Was Chairman.

Easter Monday is the henpecked husband's day in Yorkshire, and the members of the Ancient and Honor- able Order of Henpecked Husbands held high revel together in hillside vil- lages, says the London Morning Post.

The club is one of those freak in- stitutions established in pure fun, though the members do declare that it dates from Adam, who was the first chairman of the order.

Really it is a survival of the days when freak clubs flourished in the country—the days of the Elamites of Bradford, known locally as the Low Moor Liars, whose test of membership was the ability to drink a quart of beer without stopping to take a breath, and to tell a thumping lie.

The biggest liar was elected mayor for the three months following and had the privilege of free beer at all meetings during his term of office.

Another quaint organization was the Pudsey Bletherhead Tea club, a body which, judged by its name, might have been mistaken for a tea-drinking in- stitution, but which declared its ob- ject to be the promotion of beer-drink- ing and the playing of chess.

Egyptian Decorative Ideas.

Experts tell us that in the decora- tion of furniture the Egyptian cabinet maker never veiled construction. He obeyed the sound principle and precept that decoration should spring from construction, and not construction from decoration.

Elements of ornament apparently were the same in private as in public buildings. These elements were the lotus and papyrus flowers, the palm branch and the feathers of birds, as well as a number of geometrical pat- terns derived from primitive arts of weaving and plaiting. The simple or complex treatment of lotus and pa- pyrus flowers, buds, leaves and stems, it is asserted, made the Egyptian sys- tem of mural decoration rich, varied and glowing, as well as thoroughly in harmony with the scale of color set by nature in the Nile valley.

Man Shoulders Not Level.

To the majority of persons the state- ment that their shoulders are not of the same height will come as a sur- prise, but tailors know that almost in- variably the left shoulder is higher than the right.

If a baby's shoulders are measured it will be found that they are exactly even. That they do not remain so is blamed upon parents, who as a rule lead their young and growing children by the left hand.

This is a natural manner of leading the child, and it shields it from bumps of persons met in their walks, but the muscles and bones are thus continual- ly raised and in the end drawn per- manently out of position, although the change is so slight that it is not notice- able unless accurate measurements are taken.

Nails.

A machine for making nails was patented on May 18, 1824. To America belongs the distinction of being the first to make cut nails by machinery. With the advent of machine-cut nails the household industry of nail-making rapidly declined. The hand-made nail was pinched in a vise, with a portion projecting; a few blows with a ham- mer flattened one end into a head, which was beaten into a counter sunk in the vise, in this manner regulating its size and shape. Nails were also made by forging on an anvil.

Like to Write Letters.

The English-speaking race is the most industrious in the world in the matter of letter writing. The Aus- tralians take first place, with 13 let- ters per head per year; Canada and the United Kingdom comes third with 75. The German average is only 49, and Italy is a long way be- hind with only 11.

Japanese "Trial by Ordeal."

Trial by ordeal still exists in some parts of Japan. If a theft takes place in a household, all the servants are required to write a certain word with the same brush. The conscience is supposed to betray its workings in the waves of the ideographs written. Tracing an ideograph involves such an effort to muscular directness and undivided attention that this device often leads to the discovery of the guilty person.

AUTO BUS FIRE EARLY SUNDAY

George Weiss of Harrison, N. J., is in the Kingston City Hospital with serious injuries sustained when the big auto bus he was driving caught fire and was badly wrecked on Abeel street about 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. Weiss was driving the bus which carried twenty men who were enroute to Shandaken to work for the Ulen Construction Company. The bus was not working well and Mr Weiss decided to investigate and see what was the trouble. He drove up to the curb in front of the residence of John Schick at No. 165 Abeel street, and while he was under the car the twenty men remained on board laughing and joking among themselves.

Mr Weiss had an oil lamp which he set on the curb and it is thought that the fumes from the bus feed pipe became ignited by the oil lamp and suddenly a sheet of flame shot out from under the car enveloping the truck.

The twenty men leaped out in a mad scramble leaving behind in the car their tools and outer coats. One of the twenty happened to remember that Weiss was under the car and pulled him out badly burned. Police headquarters were notified and an alarm of fire turned in from Box 28 to which the firemen responded.

Weiss was removed to the hospital in the ambulance.

The Schick building was scorched by the flames from the burning auto, but the firemen extinguished the fire before the house was damaged to any extent. The big truck was badly damaged by the fire, the body being entirely consumed. It was taken in charge by the fire department.

Later in the morning arrangements were made to take the twenty passengers on to Shandaken.

In spite of the early hour a large crowd collected at the scene of the fire.

FIRE IN BARN.

Slight Downs Street Blaze Thought Incendiary.

An alarm of fire rung in from box 64 at 12:20 this morning called fire companies to 173 Downs street, where a barn at the rear of the lot owned by Harry Stewart was on fire. The damage was slight the fire being between the siding at the back end of the barn. It was quickly extinguished by the firemen. A trotting horse owned by Val. Schirick, barber at 610 Broadway was in the barn but was gotten out safely. It is thought by the people of the neighborhood that the building was set on fire.

A Croquet Set Needed.

With some thirty girls at the Girl Scout Camp at Ideal Park, all having a jolly, happy, wholesome time, there seems to be just one thing needed. If the girls had a croquet set they could get no end of enjoyment out of the same. Possibly some one would be willing to lend a set for the use of the Girl Scouts, and if so, will they please notify Miss Davis, at her office in the County building, ?? John street, telephone 1532, and a way will be provided for getting the same to the camp.

Lake Mohonk Team Wins.

McCreery's All Stars of Kingston were beaten by the Mohonk team Saturday. The grounds being very heavy caused a number of errors on both sides. Caunitz and Davis were the batteries for the All Stars, while Crazin and Juckart officiated for the home team. McCreery was the manager for the Mohonk team during the 1920 season and he had no reason to think they had lost any of their pep under the present management.

CHANGE FROM TAILORED SUIT

A winsome change from the strictly tailored suit is this model of platinum gray, with self-toned embroidery.

CUT OF THE NEW NEGLIGEES

Mandarin Style of Garment Is Slightly Shaped by Means of Gathers Under Arms.

A good many negligees are made of black satin in the style of oriental robes, being hand painted instead of embroidered. Those that are not hand-painted are lined with a bright color to supply a contrast. For instance, a negligee of black satin may be lined with gold or cerise.

There are several different styles among these oriental models of black satin. One especially is distinctly new and interesting, not only for its style, but for its simplicity. When on, the corsage has a shawl effect, as the two sides cross in surplice fashion, passing through a slit at one side, to tie, and hang in long sash ends. No sleeves are required in this negligee, as the surplice sections extend over the arm somewhat like a kimono sleeve, and while the garment is collarless it has turnback revers at the front showing the colored lining.

The mandarin style of negligee is slightly shaped by means of gathers under the arm. These negligees are decorated in hand-painted motifs, in striking designs and colorings, with touches of embroidery combined with the painting.

An unusual robe of zenana cloth has all the edges scalloped and buttonholed in white chenille. The collar is deeply pointed at the back and at the front there is a full-length panel, narrow and plastron-like at the top, and widening out to extend over the hips below the waistline. The scalloping continues on these panels, which button down with large pearl buttons. This style is also made in crepe and [illegible]. Some of the Japanese [illegible] are embroidered in Japanese [illegible] [illegible] combined with hand painting.

THE FRILLS OF FASHION

It may be painting the rose but one of the liveliest of vestees in an imported suit was made from rich-colored Japanese embroidery. Its heavy flower patterns were brought out by a white silk floss outline.

Pimetis is a new dotted swiss, and a most effective afternoon frock material which shows small printed nosegay patterns as well as the embroidered dots. This is to be had in a wide variety of delicate colorings.

Honey dew is the color which brought back macrame lace. An overblouse of honey dew crepe de chine is gathered into a deep band of lace which fits slightly at the waistline. A twotone ribbon runs through the band and ties at one side in long loops and streamers.

The new drop-stitch voiles are fine and sheer and adapt themselves readily to the making of soft, youthful afternoon frocks. These voiles are a most colorful collection indeed, in such shades as lemon, yellow saffron, jade, orchid, old blue, shell pink, coral, flamingo and platinum.

Mirage organdies come principally in the pastel shades and show a ring, a dot or a small square of a slightly paler shade than the material itself, the figure resembling a stamp and not being of the printed variety. Other mirage organdies have overwork of dainty embroidery or chain stitching. A striking pattern on rose-colored mirage organdie had crossing lines of chain stitching in white which formed 2-inch checks.

A simple tea frock entirely different is a negligee which might be characterized as a tea frock, so simple is it in line. It is a short slipover of changeable satin, flares at the back and front, leaving the fullness to be concentrated at the sides. Sleeves, cut in one with the main portion, are very full, but so draped as to fit the wrist closely. The only trimming applied consists of small squares of oriental embroidery just above the waistline at the front.

Why Rich Men Want More.

The reason a rich man is never satisfied with the size of his fortune is not necessarily because he has acquired a kind of hog instinct, but rather because his knowledge of affairs and his breadth of vision have grown until he sees bigger and bigger things that he wishes to do; and his ambition to accomplish is always a few leads ahead of his capital. The richest men in the world are usually the heaviest borrowers, because they are in a position to see the most to be done. Hence any man setting out to get rich might as well recognize at the beginning, that from the very nature of things, he can never hope to feel that he has enough.—Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business.

Cultivate Observation.

Observation is a quality that is easy to cultivate if you make up your mind to do so. Try to notice the birds and beasts, the men and things you see every day. Ask yourself at night what you have seen during the day. At first your answers will be very short but soon you will find that you are beginning really to see things. It is not difficult, and it is well worth while. Allied with observation is the power of imagination. The first enables us to see things as they are; by means of the second we see things as they might be. Imagination makes use not of the outward eye, but of the mind's eye.

Italy's Marvelous Dinner Dish.

The great national dish of Korea is cooksu. To make it, you plunge a large lump of ice into a bowl partly filled with steaming vermicelli of the medium variety. Over this you pour a portion of hot beef stew. The ice congeals the beef fat into little islands of grease, and you never know whether the portion dangling from the end of your chopsticks will be ice cold or burning hot. The vermicelli, which is very tough, is to be lifted to the mouth with the chopsticks. Keeping a firm hold on it with the lips and teeth, you slip the chopsticks down to it again and take up the slack by sucking.

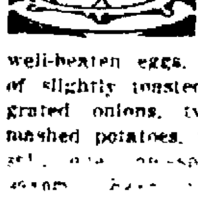
FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

For those whose meat products are somewhat or entirely restricted the following recipe will be found welcome:



Peanut Roast.—Mix thoroughly two cupfuls of peanut butter with one cupful of milk. Add four well-beaten eggs. Stir in one quart of slightly toasted breadcrumbs, two grated onions, two cupfuls of hot mashed potatoes, two teaspoonfuls of salt, [illegible] teaspoonful of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Serve garnished with parsley and [illegible].

Onion Fritters.—Soak one ounce of stale bread in cold water until soft, squeeze dry and separate with a fork. Meanwhile have a pound of onions boiled, drained and mashed; mix with salt and pepper, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a teaspoonful of thyme. Form into little cakes and dip in flour. Fry in hot fat.

Nut Chops.—Trim crusts of bread, (whole wheat), spread with peanut butter and cut in oblong pieces. Dip in egg, add six tablespoonfuls of cream, dip in cracker crumbs, place in a buttered pan and bake until brown.

Beef Red Hot.—Cut roast beef or pork in thin slices. Slice thin sweet red peppers and firm ripe tomatoes. Slice one onion thin and brown in butter. Into a baking dish put a layer of meat, a layer of tomato and pepper with seasoning of salt, pepper and paprika for each layer. Over all pour a sauce made from the gravy of the meat, the butter from the frying of the onions. Add a little curry or chutney and a dash of cayenne. Bake in the oven thirty minutes or until well browned over the top.

New Carrots, Peas and Onions.—Cook together new peas, diced new carrots and small white onions until all are cooked. Add a bit of diced cooked bacon, a little milk and season [illegible] salt and cayenne and serve hot.

Strawberry Pie.—Bake a pastry shell and when cold fill with crushed sweetened strawberries, top with sweetened whipped cream, chill and serve.

Machine That Harvests Rice.

As rice has to be harvested in water, it was thought to be work which would always have to be done by human labor, but a machine has been invented which moves through the deep mud and gathers the grain. It is capable of performing many of the duties of the ordinary reaper.

"Ha! ha!" says "Stubby," smiling, as you can plainly see by the photograph. "Maybe there's something in this dog's life they talk about, after all! General Pershing just pinned a medal on me. Maybe you can't see it, because kings and others had stuck so many others on me. But it's there Because I'm a wounded hero and everything. I'm a life member of the Y. M. C. COHEN HELD FOR FORTIETH TIME

Judge Hasbrouck Refuses To Free Three Criminals With Long Records Who Are Accused of Robbery In Sullivan County.

Ulster county was visited Saturday by three criminals with records longer than those of any local talent, but they came here in charge of Sheriff George D. Pelton of Sullivan county, in an attempt to gain their freedom through habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Hasbrouck.

The three men, Wolf Galipter, Joe Cohen and Sam Gold, were arrested after alighting from a New York, Ontario & Western railroad train at Mountaindale, Sullivan county, on a description telephoned from Woodridge in that county, where Israel Hyman had been robbed of $750 in cash and $130 in checks as he was leaving the same train on which they were passengers.

Mr. Hyman, who is about 70 years old, lives at Luzon and was on his way to the Woodridge bank to deposit his cash and checks. He was jostled by five or six men as he left the train and his eight year old grandson informed him, "Grandpa, I saw a man have his hand in your pocket." Mr. Hyman notified the railroad detectives and other officers and a description of the strangers, which was given by several persons, was sent along the line.

Six strangers alighted from the train when it reached Mountaindale and hurriedly made arrangements for an automobile to take them to Woodridge. The attorney called Judge Hasbrouck's attention to the fact that the three defendants were in a seven passenger Reo car when arrested and urged as proof of their innocence that criminals never returned so soon to the scene of their crime.

Three of the party succeeded in escaping from Constable Nessolowitz of Mountaindale, but Galipter, Cohen and Gold were arrested.

The writ of habeas corpus, which was granted by Judge Hasbrouck, was based on alleged irregularities in the proceedings before the justice of the peace, but no reference to irregularities of any kind was made by their attorney when the case was argued before the judge.

District Attorney Harry F. Gardner of Sullivan county objected to the proceedings on the ground that the application for the writ did not conform to the requirements of the code of criminal procedure, but was overruled.

Isidore Rotherberg, a lawyer of Woodridge, who appeared for the defendants, urged that the only testimony in the case was that of an eight year old boy who had testified that he saw one of the defendants feeling of his grandfather's pockets. Furthermore, he urged, less than $500 was found in the possession of the men although the amount of which Mr. Hyman was robbed was $730.

District Attorney Gardner reviewed the facts briefly and said that investigation since their arrest showed the three men to have long criminal records. Cohen had been arrested 38 times prior to his present arrest, and served each time from five days to six months. Galipter had been arrested seven times, once in Belgium and once in Ireland, and Gold had served time in New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

Judge Hasbrouck said he would hold the defendants and inquired about bail. It was disclosed that an application for bail was pending before County Judge Smith of Sullivan county, who refused to fix it until he could look into the men's records, when Mr. Rotherberg came in the case and started the habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Hasbrouck.

District Attorney Gardner suggested bail of $5,000 each in order that criminals should be notified they could not come to Sullivan county and rob people and then walk out of jail under nominal bail. At his suggestion, a woman who had accompanied the party to Kingston, began weeping loudly. Judge Hasbrouck fixed bail at $2,000 in each case, which Mr. Rotherberg said would be furnished by a surety company.

PIANO RECITAL

Given By Pupils of Miss Sophie Schmidtkonz.

The piano recital given by the pupils of Miss Sophie Schmidtkonz in the school hall of the Spring Street Lutheran Church on Friday evening was largely attended by the parents and friends of the youthful musicians, who played their selections most creditably, some of them by memory showing a thoroughness of training received by their teacher and also that they worked faithfully and well, and gained in poise, sureness of fingering as well as in interpretative skill. The program was as follows:

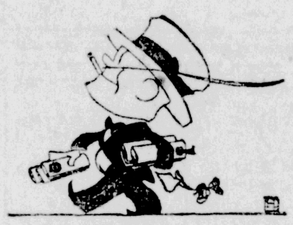
FOR A healthy rise.
AND FOR seven days.
I HUGGED the ticker.
AND COULDN'T sleep.
ONCE IT jumped two points.
AND I walked on air.
AND THAT very day.
I SAW a sign.
IN A cigar stand.
THAT SAID "Satisfy."
IT GAVE me a hunch.
TO BE satisfied.
WITH WHAT I'd got.
AND NOT hog the deal.
SO I phoned my broker.
TO SELL me out.
AND THE very next day.
SLIPPERY ELLUM slipped.
TO FIFTY-FIVE.
SO NOW I've gotten.
BACK MY bonds.
AND BABY'S got new shoes.
AND NOW my regular smokes.
ARE THE cigarettes.
THAT "SATISFY."



WHENEVER you get that "Satisfy" hunch, play it. Steer straight for the nearest stand and invest in Chesterfields. This combination of fine Turkish tobaccos, blended with Burley and other Domestic leaf, will give you a new measure of cigarette enjoyment. You're in luck from that day on.

Baby Fussed All the Time

Sykes Comfort Powder Healed Its Skin & Stopped All Fussing

Lawrence, Mass. — "My oldest child was badly chafed, fussed all the time, and the only way I could do anything with him was to keep soft cloths next to his skin. I tried several powders but nothing helped him until I heard of Sykes Comfort Powder. I cannot recommend it too highly because it has healed the skin affections of my children after everything else had failed, and stopped all fussing." — Mrs. E. L. Green, Lawrence, Mass.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in such cases is because it contains six healing, antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it "A Healing Wonder."

Why Unlucky to Go Back.

How many people would be willing to acknowledge that they believe it is bad luck to return, after leaving the house, for something they have forgotten? Some popular superstitions can be explained psychologically—and this is one of them. The psychologists agree as to the bad luck part of it, but say that the bad luck consists not so much in the going back for the article as in the forgetting of it in the first place. This shows that you do not keep your mind sufficiently upon the details of what you are doing.

LET OUT DEMON

Ancients Had Cruel Methods of Relieving Headaches.

People of Today Would Be Apt to Consider the Remedy as Worse Than the Disease.

"Headaches are bothersome things," writes Prof. Roy L. Moodie of the University of Illinois in the Scientific Monthly. "People have been annoyed by them for a long time, seven thousand years at least, and probably longer. We are all quite willing, when afflicted with a headache, to agree with the people of the Stone age that a headache is a demon, and we would be willing to do almost anything to get rid of it.

"The pain, whether due to a blow on the head, indigestion, nervousness or other cause, certainly reminds one of a demon, and it is readily understood how ancient man should have conceived the idea of releasing this demon which was bothering him. He devised a remedy which certainly was an effective cure for headache, whether the pain was due to eye-strain, brain tumor, skull friction or nervousness, although it must be admitted that his cure was worse than the pain.

"Primitive man devised his curative measures as a phase of his religious beliefs, hence the cure adopted for headaches was performed by a shaman or medicine man in some remote fastness of his region, and here the patient remained until completely recovered. This treatment consisted in opening the skull in a variety of ways to relieve the pain, or, as the Stone age men thought, to let out the demon.

"This ancient surgical art, which forms the very beginnings of prehistoric surgery, seems to have been developed in the region just north of Paris, near the Seine and Oise rivers, some seven or eight thousand years ago. In the dolmens, or burial mounds, scientists have found the ancient skulls trepanned or opened to release the headache demon. No special class of individuals seems to have been favored, since the operation was performed on man, woman or child, apparently without respect for either age or sex. Its frequency is attested by the great number of skulls exhibiting the surgical openings. In one burial mound in France yielding the bones of 120 individuals more than forty showed the effects of trepannation.

"It is not very pleasant to picture the torture undergone by the ancient sufferer at the hands of the priest, who either cut, scraped or bored the bone of the skull away with a sharp piece of stone. Some relief from pain may have been had by the application of a quid of cocoa, a plant yielding anesthetic substances which grows in Peru.

"But the worst thing about headaches is that they recur, so the ancient people, not deterred by one failure, submitted themselves to the operation again and again. A few ancient skulls reveal five cruel openings, all of which had healed. The patient had survived them all.

"The equipment of the primitive surgeon was meager. His knowledge of cleanliness was not keen. If he possessed a rough flint knife, a scraper, a few leaves of cocoa plant and a piece of coarse cloth to bind the wound, he was content. A mossy bank out in the woods served him for an operating table."

Dickens and Thackeray.

Gilbert K. Chesterton, who is a great admirer of Dickens, has this to say of him:

"Now, the interesting thing is this: That Dickens, whom so many considered to be a vulgar enthusiast, saw the coming change in our society much more soberly and scientifically than did his better educated and more pretentious contemporaries. . . . There is no trace in Thackeray of the slightest consciousness that progress could ever change its direction. There is in Dickens. The whole of "Hard Times" is the expression of just such a realization. It is not true to say that Dickens was a Socialist, but it is not absurd to say so. And it would be simply absurd to say it of any of the great individualist novelists of the Victorian time. He felt the society changing; and Thackeray never did . . . Now, for this reason Dickens must definitely be considered in the light of the changes which his soul foresaw. Thackeray has become classical; but Dickens has done more; he has remained modern."

Treatment for Hip Disease.

Hip joint disease in children has been looked upon as almost always due to tuberculosis of the bones of the joint. But Dr. Halfdan Sundt, who is medical superintendent of Fredriksvern Coast hospital in Norway, has recently published a pamphlet in which he asserts that 43.4 per cent of such cases are not tuberculosis at all.

Immobilization for a long period has been the standard treatment, but Dr. Sundt divided his cases into groups, one of which he allowed to run about freely with no treatment, and he found after three years' observation that the final results were just as good in those as in the other cases.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE PLAY.

The boy and the girl adventurers who were in the House of Secrets after all their adventures were now at the play which was given for them by many of the little creatures who lived there.

The boy and the girl saw that after the curtain went up for the first act that all these little creatures acting in the play were pulling at a great sheet. They all pulled in different directions, and each snarled and said he or she was right.

Suddenly the sheet gave way and shreds of it were here and shreds of it were there, and all was in confusion and very much mixed up.

The curtain went down on the first act then.

"The second act," someone shouted.

The curtain went up again. And everyone now was pulling in the same direction.

Voices were low, each was offering a helpful opinion, but no one was saying that he or she was the only one to be considered. Everyone thought of each other, no one was left behind and no one was trampled upon, as had happened in the first act.

The curtain went down again.

"The third act," someone shouted.

Once more the curtain went up and there, on the stage, was a small-sized world. Everyone was going this way and that, but all in perfect order.

No one was trying to knock anyone

"The Sheet Gave Way."

else down or rush so hard that he trampled on anyone. No one was pulling anything against anyone else. And the world seemed filled with splendid things.

The boy and the girl left after the play was over and they found Master Thoughtfulness and the Courier Co-operation.

"We've just seen a play which reminded us of you," they told the Courier and he laughed.

"I'm so glad you liked my play," he said.

"You wrote it! It's fine," the boy said.

"Well, you were going to ask us something?" he asked.

"Oh, yes; we want to know if in any way we can always be happy?" they asked together.

"But hadn't you come to the House of Secrets to ask other questions? Didn't you want to be leaders?" Master Thoughtfulness asked them.

The boy looked at the girl.

To think that they had adventured so far and for so long and that when they had reached the House they had forgotten what they had come for.

But now that they were at the House they found that they didn't care so much to be leaders.

They liked instead to do things with others, and to share pleasures and adventures and besides, they thought, if one was a leader there wouldn't be half the fun as it had been with so many leaders and guide-posts and all as they had met.

They had met so many more, too, in the House.

"We wanted to be leaders," said the girl, "but for my part, now I'd rather be happy. I don't mean to say that some mightn't be both, but I haven't the same ambitions I started out with, I guess."

"Neither have I," said the boy.

"Ah," said Master Thoughtfulness, "you have learned the secrets of the House of Secrets!

"For you have seen the rooms where all work together and play together and where each is so happy considering the other and yet trying to make something of themselves, too.

"Yes," said Master Thoughtfulness, "you will both be happy, really happy, for you've both adventured along the road and you've learned real secrets!"

"And," said the Courier, "though you don't know it now, you will when you stop to think about your trip. Remember that it takes so many different people and still so many different people to make up a world.

"We need all our friends like Master Thoughtfulness here, Mrs. Get-the-Most-out-of-Life, the Brownie Joy and all. No one of them tries to be the leader, for each one wants the help of the other!"

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, July 11.—William Hausmann wife and daughter of New York, who have been boarding with the Johnsons, No. 5 Bloomer street, have gone to Cairo for about four weeks and then will motor to Niagara Falls before going back to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Constant of Ellenville are spending a few days with E. N. Baxter of Mountaindale.

Miss Delilah Morse is spending a two weeks' vacation in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hoornbeck arrived in town Tuesday afternoon coming by auto from Ocean City, Md., having left there Sunday afternoon, following a week's visit. They expect to spend two or three months in Ellenville making their headquarters with Mrs. Winte Terwilliger on upper Market street.

Mrs. Minnie Vantraw and daughter have gone to spend some time with her sister at Hasbrouck.

Arshar V. Hornbeck and wife, who are touring Europe, were at Monte Carlo. They have visited the battle fields of France and other interesting localities previous to going to Monte Carlo.

Christie Sherry of East Orange spent Sunday with his wife at the Sherry home on upper Center street.

A hearing will be had on the Sunday baseball proposition before the board of trustees next Tuesday evening at the village hall.

Many Ellenville friends will congratulate Miss Margaret McGowan, daughter of James McGowan, and the late Mary Connelly, of Ellenville, on having won a $2,500 scholarship in Trinity College. Miss McGowan lives with her uncle, James E. Connelly in Washington, and recently graduated from the Notre Dame school and won the scholarship in competition with all the schools of Washington.

Miss Gladys Decker has accepted a position with the Terwilliger agency.

R. G. Simpson and family spent the week-end in Liberty.

Cornelius Cleary and family arrived in town Wednesday stopping at the Mitchell House.

George Freer has just finished a neat bungalow for Edward Rippert at Ulster Lake.

Paul Wintish has completed his reservoir and has broken ground for his new house on his lot on Cape avenue.

Mrs. Schmonses and two children are visiting her mother, Mrs. J. M. Clair.

William Clay and wife with their daughter and sonin-law, have been spending a few days at the home of Mr. Clay's brother-in-law, Horace Terwilliger on upper Centre street.

James Myers who sold Terrace Hill House to Hebrews, says they are entertaining 125 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Terwilliger and family of Middletown spent the week-end in Ellenville with friends.

It Wasn't Clarence.

Clarence Clark, the courteous and efficient janitor of the National Ulster County Bank and the Avance Building on Wall street, was not responsible for the firing up of the boiler in the Advance Building last week and the treat of steam heat while the thermometer hovered around the 90 degree mark. One of the employes in the Advance Building started the fire in the rubbish in the furnace. Although Clarence believes in keeping the tenants warm in winter he is willing that nature take care of the heat during the summer time.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 11, 1921.

MUZZLING VOTERS.

If the dangerous growth of radicalism in Kingston is the excuse of the common council and mayor for attempting to regulate public speech in this city, they ought to be able to support their argument with facts and figures.

The vote on governor is the basis of all political estimates and computations.

In the past decade there have been many political spasms masquerading under the names of political parties but during all the time there have been the three big parties now in control — Republican, Prohibition, Democratic.

In 1916, in addition to the three principal political parties, candidates for governor were nominated by the American, Socialist and Social-Labor parties.

In 1918 the American party had disappeared, although two years before it was important enough to include John D. Schoonmaker of this city as a Presidential elector. The Socialist and Social-Labor parties continued.

In 1920 the Socialist and Social-Labor parties again appeared in the field with the addition of the Farmer-Labor party headed by Dudley Field Malone.

The vote for governor by these parties in Kingston during this period, and the total vote of the city for all candidates for governor, was as follows:

	1916	1918	1920
American	1	..	..
Socialist	26	55	56
Social-Labor	3	8	6
Farmer-Labor	..	..	44
Total radical vote	30	63	106
Total city vote	5,524	6,303	10,100

The growth of radicalism, Bolshevism and anarchy in Kingston shown above was made while federal and state sedition laws were in effect and while prosecutions were being had under those laws. At no time, however, was there any attempt by federal or state authorities to rob the people of their constitutional right of free speech.

With an aldermanic-mayoralty attempt to muzzle the people and regulate their public speech by requiring a permit from the mayor, will the radical-Bolshevist-anarchist vote grow smaller or larger?

NOT IN KINGSTON.

According to a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune, President Harding matched pennies with fourteen senators with whom he took luncheon at the Capitol Thursday to decide who should pay. The President's luck was with him. Senator Wadsworth of New York was "stuck" for the price of the luncheon for the entire party. Aside from the awful sinfulness of matching pennies, which probably will be prohibited in Kingston if appropriate ordinances have not been adopted already, such an occurrence would be impossible here. The Capitol restaurant is a place to which the public are invited or have access, just like the restaurants and hotel dining rooms of Kingston. Even if President Harding and fourteen senators should come to Kingston, they could not repeat Thursday's penny-matching because fifteen people certainly constitute a "gathering, assemblage or demonstration," which Kingston's common council has decreed shall not be held in any place within the city "to which the public are invited or have access" unless it has been "authorized by a written permit from the mayor." Such is the Kingston ordinance.

"SIT TIGHT."

There are times when you feel that you have been outraged and that you are justified in doing anything to get even. This feeling has come to most persons some time or another, but the wise plan is do nothing because if you do it is ten to one that you will do that which you will regret. There is no doubt about it, for the one who has tried to get even and has gotten even this way seldom fails to admit eventually that it was a mistake and often a serious one.

For some reason it seems to be the lot of everybody to be hurt badly at some period and naturally the first thought that comes to mind is to strike back. The foolishness of adopting this impulse is proved by the very fact that no person has good judgment when in the throes of despair. The truth is judgment then is the very worst, and to act at such a time can only bring remorse. Getting even, as a rule is the most costly practice anybody can follow.

Big men, men in public life, learn by experience to guard against an outburst of temper. Some of them have learned by experience that nothing is ever gained by it, even though there are those who will concede that there may have been justification. In the long run it does not pay and it would be difficult to find one person who would say that he was glad that he got even. Your first thought is to do it, but if you will wait until you cool down you will almost invariably be satisfied that you retained your poise and that you avoided that which was sure to add to your distress instead of soothing the hurt.

The expression, "sit tight," was probably phrased by some one who might have been justified in getting even but who had the good sense to see that there was nothing to be accomplished by doing anything more than waiting. It is difficult but the fact remains that the man who answers or engages in any argument when he is ugly always looms up at his worst, because just then he is without judgment. When something stings it may not always be necessary to forget it, but there is wisdom in not acting right on the moment. There is some philosophy in "sit tight" even though it does not offer elegance of diction, because if you do you will never have any cause to apologize even to yourself for doing what you know you should not have done.

AN UNEXPECTED PARDON.

Franz J. Feinler went to France as a chaplain in the United States army. He was sent back for treasonable utterances and propaganda among our soldiers in favor of Germany. Notwithstanding this pointed warning, he continued his propaganda, defended the sinking of the Lusitania and the shooting of Edith Cavell, and even urged the men in his charge to refuse to fight the Germans. Finally, in 1918, this bold and insolent agent of Germany attached to our army was tried by court-martial, sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment, and the sentence was confirmed by the reviewing authority. After serving three years he was liberated on parole, and then, no great while afterward, he was pardoned—all before we were even formally at peace with Germany.

It is said that Secretary Weeks recommended that pardon on the ground that Feinler had suffered enough, but it may well be doubted whether the country generally agrees with him, judging from the comments. "It is doubtful," says one surprised and disapproving editor, "if the liberation of a criminal like Feinler either wins or retains a single vote, but it is sure to cost the loss of a lot of them. That is something politicians seem to be unable to see." It is pertinent to add that, though the war has been over nearly three years and we have now declared peace by Congressional resolution, we may have another war and treason is still treason.

The corporation counsel of the city of Kingston is its legal adviser. If he is not already familiar with Section Three of Kingston's new gag-law, he ought to read it. It says: "No person shall participate in any parade, gathering, assemblage or demonstration upon any street, square, park or other public place within the city to which the public are invited or have access, which parade, gathering, assemblage or demonstration has not been authorized by a written permit from the mayor." Question to the corporation counsel: "When the fire alarm sounds, are crowds prohibited from assembling at the scene of the fire? If not, what is the meaning of Section Three?"

We know why Kingston was burned by British soldiers and the date. It was burned on October 17, 1777, because America was fighting against the oppression of Great Britain and Kingston was "a hotbed of Rebels," as the British soldiers called our liberty-loving ancestors. We would now like to know why the liberty of speech and assembly for which our ancestors fought must be denied to their descendants unless "authorized by a written permit from the mayor."

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

Copyright 1921, By HOUGHTON MIFFLIN CO.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Why do some transplanted seedlings take root much better than others?
2. What is meant by saying antlers are "in the velvet?"
3. Why do domesticated wild geese eat more charcoal, in confinement, than others?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What is the average normal temperature of cold-blooded creatures?

By cold blooded, we mean blood that does not keep a standard normal temperature like that of mammals. "Cold" blood is that of the surrounding atmosphere which swimming in cold water take on the temperature of the medium in which they move. Snakes take the temperature of the air, if land varieties.

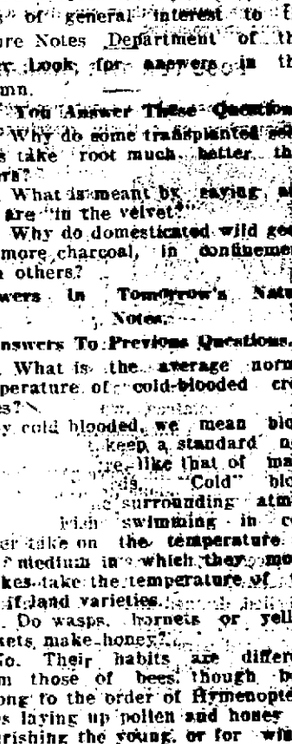
2. Do wasps, hornets or yellow jackets make honey?

No. Their habits are different from those of bees, though both belong to the order of Hymenoptera. Bees laying up pollen and honey for nourishing the young, or for winter use among such varieties as live through the cold. Wasps store insect food to provision their young.

3. What is the bird described below that has taken my bird house? "Its back is all blue, its throat is brownish red. About half way along its under parts are brownish red and the rest is gray. It has a few brown streaks across its breast. Its bill is a black color.

A good description of a blue bird sent evidently by a child. Bluebirds are members of the thrush family, and the young will show the breast spots characteristic of thrushes.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Good Business Costume.

Ladies' shirt waist 3414, and ladies' skirt, 3475 are here portrayed. The waist is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt is cut in 6 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. The waist will require 2 yards of 32 inch material for a 38 inch size. The skirt will require 3 yards of 44 inch material.

Serge, twill, cheviot, check or plaid suiting, linen or rainproof could be used for the skirt. For the waist one might chose washable satin, linen, madras or crepe. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 yards (with plaits extended).

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 12c for each pattern in coin or stamps.

GERMAN WAR CULPRIT TRIALS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Leipzig, July 11.—General Schack and General Kruska, former army officers, who are on trial today in the war criminals court, are accused of causing the death of 300 war prisoners by intentionally spreading typhoid germs in prison camps and refusing to allow preventtive meaures. If trials are finished in time the cases in which Great Britain appears as plaintiff will be resumed tomorrow. Among the prisoners against whom Great Britain will appear are Lieut. Dittmar and Lieut. Boldt, former submarine officers who are accused of sinking the British hospital ship Llandover Castle.

BRINNIER DIDN'T DRAW GAG LAW

Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier, who is the legal adviser of the city, was asked today by a Freeman reporter whether it was true that he had drawn the ordinance adopted by the common council last week regulating public parades, meetings and speeches.

Mr. Brinnier replied that he had not drawn the ordinance. In fact, said Mr. Brinnier, the first he had seen the ordinance and the first knowledge he had of such an ordinance was when he read it in The Freeman.

CARELESS IN CANOE.

Lads Escape With Wetting—Might Have Been Serious.

Two uptown youths on Sunday went to Kingston Point to enjoy an outing and while there went for a canoe ride. During the ride the old question of exchanging places in a canoe came up and when one of the youths refused to change his seat the other jokingly said he would tip the canoe over and gave it a gentle rock. The next instant both boys were in the water. Only one of them could swim but fortunately the other was able to seize the overturned canoe and hold on until the other lad who could swim had righted it. One of the lads had donned a new suit, shoes and hat for the afternoon and the appearance of the new outfit was not improved by the dip in the Hudson. What happened later in the day when the two lads returned home has not been learned.

Bonus Decision Wednesday.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

YOUR LIGHT & POWER COMPANY AND YOUR COMMUNITY

"Think what would happen if the Light and Power Company which supplies your community with electricity suddenly ceased to operate ..... The motor-driven machinery in busy factories would come to a standstill. The many little power-driven contrivances which add to the convenience of your shop or home would be useless. Even the lights by which you work and play would be snuffed out.

"Yet the great service rendered by the Light and Power Company is too often forgotten. It has become so much a part of our everyday life that it is taken for granted. Only on the rare occasions when something goes wrong does the Light and Power Company receive even a passing thought; and that thought is perforce a damning one.

"In the light of actual facts, the Light and Power Company takes on an entirely different aspect. Its welfare and the welfare of the community as a whole are one and inseparable. The extent and character of the service it renders influences to a considerable degree the establishment of new industries. And the more widely that service is used, the cleaner and brighter the community will become, for electrical power is clean power.

"But the Light and Power Company has an even more important role. Upon the extension of its services into new territory depends the full development of the industrial, commercial and agricultural possibilities of a great part of the country. The vast power of thousands of streams and rivers is still unharnessed. Expansion is inevitable. Yet expansion without adequate capital is impossible. Light and Power Company securities offer unusual opportunities for the wise investment of surplus funds. So used, such funds will be engaged in promoting work of benefit to all, while at the same time they will yield gratifying returns and be as safe as the community itself.

"The welfare of the Light and Power Company and the welfare of the Community are one and inseparable."

QUARTERS FOR NEW AUTO AGENCY

The building at No. 327 Broadway, which is to be occupied by [illegible] Inc., incorporated, dealers in automobiles, is being painted white and the inside arranged for an office and show room. A large door is being cut in the rear wall to admit the entrance of cars and the first demonstration and exhibition cars will be here as soon as the improvements to the building are completed. Roy M. [illegible]tliff, who is at the head of the new corporation, says he will have a car that will make folks who know a good thing sit up and take notice, as he proposes to give Kingston people a chance they never had before to buy the highest grade car made in America without being compelled to go away from home to seek it.

SOCIETY NOTES.

DuBois-Millspaugh.

Saturday, July 9, besides a number of guests from Norwich, New York, Saugerties, Philadelphia, Kingston, Wallkill and Walden, the residence of John A. Jansen of Wallkill, N. Y., was the scene of a very charming wedding, when Miss Helen DuBois, niece of Mr. and Mrs John A. Jansen, and Theodore C. Millspaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Millspaugh of Wallkill, were united in marriage by the Rev. George Kanter of the Reformed Church. The bride came in on the arm of her uncle, who gave her away. She was very charmingly gowned in white crepe [illegible], trimmed with princess lace and veil caught with orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. The maid of honor, Miss Marion Dick, of Kingston, and her only attendant, wore yellow crepe de chine, draped with orchid georgette and carried a bouquet of centurias and Ophelia roses. The best man was Gordon Hartshorn of Philadelphia. Miss Kathryn Millspaugh of Yonkers, niece of the groom, played the wedding march. She was very prettily dressed in orchid georgette with hat to match. A very delicious wedding supper was served and the spacious dining room was decorated with flowers and ferns, the color scheme being yellow and white. Both Mr and Mrs. Millspaugh are popular young people of Wallkill, Mrs. Millspaugh having been church organist, having graduated from Syracuse University in the class of 1920. Mr Millspaugh having been in the U S. army overseas and is still in the service. Upon return from Saratoga and other points of interest Mr and Mrs. Millspaugh will be at home, in Liberty, N Y.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The July meeting of the Sunday school board of Trinity M E Church will be held this evening following the weekly teachers' study class.

Notwithstanding announcements that beginning this week the street department would take up ashes and contents of waste cans on Tuesday instead of Monday in the First and Twelfth wards, quite a number of people rolled out their ash cans and will cans on Wall, Fair and other streets this morning.

New York July 11.—The police, in enforcing the state prohibition law, made 6,274 arrests and seized 22,950 bottles and 4,267 barrels of "hootch" between April 4 and June 30, it was announced at police headquarters today.

Child Badly Burned.

This morning little Wilhelmina [illegible]gram of No 121 Fair street was playing with matches when her dress caught fire and before it was extinguished the child was quite badly burned. The burns will not prove fatal, however.

New England Place Names.

An interesting set of New England place names is drawn from the Bible. In these names, quite as much as in those brought from the home land, the early settlers expressed their deepest [illegible], Hebron, Gilead, Lebanon, Canaan, Bethlehem, Sharon, Mt. Carmel, Goshen, and Jerusalem are found in Connecticut alone. The names of three women in the parish register of one of these towns were Obedience, [illegible], and Mindwell. Clearly, these people had never read, or at least believed, Shakespeare's "What's in a name?"

DIED.

KINGFIELD—In this city Sunday afternoon, July 10, 1921, Mary Butler Kingfield, beloved wife of George J. Kingfield, age 56 years. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 11.—The stock market opened irregular this morning, but trading was much smaller in volume than last week. Mexican Petroleum declined ⅝ to 98⅝. General Asphalt advanced ¼ to 47⅝. Canadian Pacific rose ½ to 110½. Royal Dutch advanced ½ to 54½. American Sugar Refining rose 1¼ to 65¾. Studebaker advanced ½ to 79⅝. U. S. Steel declined ¼ to 73⅜ and Bethlehem Steel "B" advanced ⅜ to 48½.

Famous players was actively traded in, yielding ¾ to 49½ and then recovered to 50½. Similar recessions occurred in nearly all the other active issues. Sears-Roebuck was in supply falling to a new low record of 63. International Harvester broke to a another new low record of 72⅝.

Although a number of issues were in good demand throughout the forenoon, the most important features were the sharp declines in many of the industrial specialties, some of which again broke to new low records. Sears Roebuck was in supply, falling 3½ points to 62⅜ and International Harvester yielded 3 points to 47¼. Atlantic Gulf was in demand, moving up nearly 2 points to 22⅝. Famous Players was also heavily sold, yielding 3 points to 47¾. U S Steel rose from 73⅜ to 74¼ and Baldwin Locomotive sold up to 75. Studebaker was steady, advancing 1 point to 80¼. The railroad stocks were fractionally lower.

A number of stocks were strong throughout the afternoon but dealings still continued on an extremely small scale. The rubber issues were a weak exception, U S Rubber falling to 47¾ and Ajax Rubber dropped 3 points to 18.

The market closed irregular, government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

AIREDALE DOG NOT SCOTCH

Breed Had Its Origin in Yorkshire, England, and Is a Comparative Newcomer.

Your airedale is not a Scotch dog. He is not of Scotch ancestry and no blood of Scotch dogs flows in his veins. He is an Irish and English dog. The name of his breed does not come from the County Ayr in Scotland, but from the River Aire in Yorkshire, England. Nor is the airedale an old breed of dog, as such things are measured in the dog world. It is neither an old family nor a "first family" among dogs. The airedale is a newcomer. Dogs of this breed were first exhibited at Shipley, in Yorkshire in 1876, and they were then called, not airedale, but "waterside terriers." These dogs were produced by crossing an English otter hound with an Irish terrier, believed to have been a red terrier, and later adding a dash of bull terrier blood. The combination produced a dog second to no other dog in intelligence, bravery, gameness in a fight, loyalty to his master and his master's family, and kindliness to children.

The word "airedale," as the name of this new kind of dog, was first used in 1883 at the national dog show at Birmingham, England, where these entries were described as "airedales or waterside terriers." The name "waterside terriers" fell into disuse. The English Kennel club was slow and conservative in recognizing this as a new and distinct breed of dog, but referred to them as "broken-haired terriers."

TRACE INSTITUTION TO ADAM

Ancient and Honorable Order of Henpecked Husbands Claims First Man Was Chairman.

Easter Monday is the henpecked husband's day in Yorkshire, and the members of the Ancient and Honorable Order of Henpecked Husbands hold high revel together in hillside villages, says the London Morning Post.

The club is one of those freak institutions established in past years, though the members do declare that it dates from Adam, who was the first chairman of the order.

Really it is a survival of the days when freak clubs flourished in the country—the days of the Blanket of Bradford known locally as the Low Moor Liars, whose test of membership was the ability to drink a quart of beer without stopping to take a breath, and to tell a thumping lie.

The biggest liar was elected mayor for the three months following and had the privilege of free beer at all meetings during his term of office.

Another quaint organization was the Pudsey [illegible] Tea club, a body which, judged by its name, might have been [illegible] for a tea-drinking institution, but which declared its object to be the promotion of beer-drinking and the playing of chess.

Egyptian Decorative Ideas

Experts tell us that in the decoration of furniture the Egyptian cabinet maker never veiled construction. He obeyed the sound principle and precept that decoration should spring from construction and not construction from decoration.

Elements of ornament apparently were the same in private as in public buildings. These elements were the lotus and papyrus flowers, the palm branch and the feathers of birds, as well as a number of geometrical patterns derived from primitive arts of weaving and plaiting. The simple or complex treatment of lotus and papyrus flowers buds leaves and stems, it is asserted, made the Egyptian system of mural decoration rich, varied and glowing, as well as thoroughly in harmony with the scale of color set by nature in the Nile valley.

Man Shoulders Not Level.

To the majority of persons the statement that their shoulders are not of the same height will come as a surprise, but tailors know that almost invariably the left shoulder is higher than the right.

If a baby's shoulders are measured it will be found that they are exactly even. That they do not remain so is blamed upon parents, who as a rule lead their young and growing children by the left hand.

This is a natural manner of leading the child, and it shields it from bumps of persons met in their walks, but the muscles and bones are thus continually raised and in the end drawn permanently out of position, although the change is so slight that it is not noticeable unless accurate measurements are taken.

Nails

A machine for making nails was patented on May 18, 1824. To America belongs the distinction of being the first to make cut nails by machinery. With the advent of machine-cut nails the household industry of nail-making rapidly declined. The hand-made nail was pinched in a vise with a portion projecting; a few blows with a hammer flattened one end into a head, which was beaten into a counter sunk in the vise, in this manner regulating its size and shape. Nails were also made by forging on an anvil.

Like to Write Letters.

The English-speaking race is the most industrious in the world in the matter of letter writing. The Australians take first place, with 12 letters per head per year; Canada and the United Kingdom come third with 75. The German average is only 40, and Italy is a long way behind with only 22.

Japanese "Trial by Ordeal."

Trial by ordeal still exists in some parts of Japan. If a theft takes place in a household, all the servants are required to write a certain word with the same brush. The conscience is supposed to betray its workings in the waves of the ideographs written. Tracing an ideograph involves such an effort to muscular directness and undivided attention that this device often leads to the discovery of the guilty person.

COHEN HELD FOR FORTIETH TIME

Judge Hasbrouck Refuses To Free Three Criminals With Long Records Who Are Accused of Robbery In Sullivan County.

Ulster county was visited Saturday by three criminals with records longer than those of any local talent, but they came here in charge of Sheriff George D. Pelton of Sullivan county, in an attempt to gain their freedom through habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Hasbrouck.

The three men Wolf Galipter, Joe Cohen and Sam Gold, were arrested after alighting from a New York, Ontario & Western railroad train at Mountaindale Sullivan county, on a description telephoned from Woodridge in that county, where Israel Hyman had been robbed of $750 in cash and $130 in checks as he was leaving the same train on which they were passengers.

Mr. Hyman who is about 70 years old, lives at Luzon and was on his way to the Woodridge bank to deposit his cash and checks. He was jostled by five or six men as he left the train and his eight year old grandson informed him, "Grandpa, I saw a man have his hand in your pocket." Mr. Hyman notified the railroad detectives and other officers and a description of the strangers, which was given by several persons, was sent along the line.

Six strangers alighted from the train when it reached Mountaindale and hurriedly made arrangements for an automobile to take them to Woodridge. The attorney called Judge Hasbrouck's attention to the fact that the three defendants were in a seven passenger Reo car when arrested and urged as proof of their innocence that criminals never returned so soon to the scene of their crime.

Three of the party succeeded in escaping from Constable Nesselowitz of Mountaindale but Galipter, Cohen and Gold were arrested.

The writ of habeas corpus, which was granted by Judge Hasbrouck, was based on alleged irregularities in the proceedings before the justice of the peace, but no reference to irregularities of any kind was made by their attorney when the case was argued before the judge.

District Attorney Harry F. Gardner of Sullivan county objected to the proceedings on the ground that the application for the writ did not conform to the requirements of the code of criminal procedure, but was overruled.

Isidore Rotherberg, a lawyer of Woodridge, who appeared for the defendants, urged that the only testimony in the case was that of an eight year old boy who had testified that he saw one of the defendants feeling of his grandfather's pockets. Furthermore, he urged, less than $700 was found in the possession of the men although the amount of which Mr. Hyman was robbed was $750.

District Attorney Gardner reviewed the facts briefly and said that investigation since their arrest showed the three men to have long criminal records. Cohen had been arrested 30 times prior to his present arrest, and served each time from five days to six months. Galipter had been arrested seven times, once in Belgium and once in Ireland, and Gold had served time in New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

Judge Hasbrouck said he would hold the defendants and inquired about bail. It was disclosed that an application for bail was pending before County Judge Smith of Sullivan county who refused to fix it until he could look into the men's records, when Mr. Rotherberg came in the case and started the habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Hasbrouck.

District Attorney Gardner suggested bail of $5,000 each in order that criminals should be notified they could not come to Sullivan county and rob people and then walk out of jail under nominal bail. At his suggestion, a woman who had accompanied the party to Kingston, began weeping loudly. Judge Hasbrouck fixed bail at $2,000 in each case, which Mr. Rotherberg said would be furnished by a surety company.

AND THAT very day.
I SAW a sign.
IN A cigar stand.
THAT SAID "Satisfy."
IT GAVE me a hunch.
TO BE satisfied.
WITH WHAT I'd got.
AND NOT hog the deal.
SO I phoned my broker.
TO SELL me out.
AND THE very next day.
SLIPPERY ELLUM slipped.
TO FIFTY-FIVE.
SO NOW I've gotten.
BACK MY bonds.

Sykes Comfort Powder Healed Its Skin & Stopped All Fussing

Lawrence, Mass. — "My oldest child was badly chafed, fussed all the time, and the only way I could do anything with him was to keep soft cloths next to his skin. I tried several powders but nothing helped him until I heard of Sykes Comfort Powder. I cannot recommend it too highly because it has healed the skin affections of my children after everything else had failed, and stopped all fussing." — Mrs. E. L. Green, Lawrence, Mass.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in such cases is because it contains six healing, antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it "The Healing Wonder."

Why Unlucky to Go Back.

How many people would be willing to acknowledge that they believe it is bad luck to return, after leaving the house, for something they have forgotten? Some popular superstitions can be explained psychologically—and this is one of them. The psychologists agree all to the bad luck question but say that the bad luck question is not so much in the going back for the article as in the forgetting of it in the first place. This shows that you do not keep your mind sufficiently upon the details of what you are doing.

LET OUT DEMON

Ancients Had Cruel Methods of Relieving Headaches.

People of Today Would Be Apt to Consider the Remedy as Worse Than the Disease.

"Headaches are bothersome things," writes Prof. Roy L. Moodie of the University of Illinois in the Scientific Monthly. "People have been annoyed by them for a long time, seven thousand years at least, and probably longer. We are all quite willing, when afflicted with a headache, to agree with the people of the Stone age that a headache is a demon, and we would be willing to do almost anything to get rid of it.

"The pain, whether due to a blow on the head, indigestion, nervousness or other cause, certainly reminds one of a demon, and it is readily understood how ancient man should have conceived the idea of releasing this demon which was bothering him. He devised a remedy which certainly was an effective cure for headache, whether the pain was due to eye-strain, brain tumor, skull friction or nervousness, although it must be admitted that his cure was worse than the pain.

"Primitive man devised his curative measures as a phase of his religious beliefs, hence the cure adopted for headaches was performed by a shaman or medicine man in some remote fastness of his region, and here the patient remained until completely recovered. This treatment consisted in opening the skull in a variety of ways to relieve the pain, or, as the Stone age men thought, to let out the demon.

"This ancient surgical art, which forms the very beginnings of prehistoric surgery, seems to have been developed in the region just north of Paris, near the Seine and Oise rivers, some seven or eight thousand years ago. In the dolmens, or burial mounds, scientists have found the ancient skulls trepanned or opened to release the headache demon. No special class of individuals seems to have been favored, since the operation was performed on man, woman or child, apparently without respect for either age or sex. Its frequency is attested by the great number of skulls exhibiting the surgical openings. In one burial mound in France yielding the bones of 120 individuals more than forty showed the effects of trepannation.

"It is not very pleasant to picture the torture undergone by the ancient sufferer at the hands of the priest, who either cut, scraped or bored the bone of the skull away with a sharp piece of stone. Some relief from pain may have been had by the application of a quid of cocoa, a plant yielding anesthetic substances which grows in Peru.

"But the worst thing about headaches is that they recur, so the ancient people, not deterred by one failure, submitted themselves to the operation again and again. A few ancient skulls reveal five cruel openings, all of which had healed. The patient had survived them all.

"The equipment of the primitive surgeon was meager. His knowledge of cleanliness was not keen. If he possessed a rough flint knife, a scraper, a few leaves of cocoa plant and a piece of coarse cloth to bind the wound, he was content. A mossy bank out in the woods served him for an operating table."

Dickens and Thackeray.

Gilbert K. Chesterton, who is a great admirer of Dickens, has this to say of him:

"Now, the interesting thing is this: That Dickens, whom so many considered to be a vulgar enthusiast, saw the coming change in our society much more soberly and scientifically than did his better educated and more pretentious contemporaries. . . . There is no trace in Thackeray of the slightest consciousness that progress could ever change its direction. There is in Dickens. The whole of "Hard Times" is the expression of just such a realization. It is not true to say that Dickens was a Socialist, but it is not absurd to say so. And it would be simply absurd to say it of any of the great individualist novelists of the Victorian time. He felt the society changing; and Thackeray never did . . . Now, for this reason Dickens must definitely be considered in the light of the changes which his soul foresaw. Thackeray has become classical; but Dickens has done more; he has remained modern."

Treatment for Hip Disease.

Hip joint disease in children has been looked upon as almost always due to tuberculosis of the bones of the joint. But Dr. Haldan Sundt, who is medical superintendent of Fredriksvern Coast hospital in Norway, has recently published a pamphlet in which he asserts that 43.4 per cent of such cases are not tuberculosis at all.

Immobilization for a long period has been the standard treatment, but Dr. Sundt divided his cases into groups, one of which he allowed to run about freely with no treatment, and he found after three years' observation that the final results were just as good in those as in the other cases.

Serious Matter.

"How did you like my film play?"

"Good comedy," said the professional humorist. "Good work."

"But you didn't laugh."

"A brother artiste never laughs at good work."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Beautiful Girl in Big Orange.

At an orange show in San Bernardino, Cal., one of the most striking exhibits was a huge orange specimen with a beautiful girl inside. At regular intervals the orange opened and the lady threw out real oranges to the crowd.

THE PLAY.

The boy and the girl adventurers who were in the House of Secrets after all their adventures were now at the play which was given for them by many of the little creatures who lived there.

The boy and the girl saw that after the curtain went up for the first act that all these little creatures acting in the play were pulling at a great sheet. They all pulled in different directions, and each snarled and said he or she was right.

Suddenly the sheet gave way and shreds of it were here and shreds of it were there, and all was in confusion and very much mixed up.

The curtain went down on the first act then.

"The second act," someone shouted.

The curtain went up again. And everyone now was pulling in the same direction.

Voices were low, each was offering a helpful opinion, but no one was saying that he or she was the only one to be considered. Everyone thought of each other, no one was left behind and no one was trampled upon, as had happened in the first act.

The curtain went down again.

"The third act," someone shouted.

Once more the curtain went up and there, on the stage, was a small-sized world. Everyone was going this way and that, but all in perfect order.

No one was trying to knock anyone

"The Sheet Gave Way."

else down or rush so hard that he trampled on anyone. No one was pulling anything against anyone else. And the world seemed filled with splendid things.

The boy and the girl left after the play was over and they found Master Thoughtfulness and the Courier Co-operation.

"We've just seen a play which reminded us of you," they told the Courier and he laughed.

"I'm so glad you liked my play," he said.

"You wrote it! It's fine," the boy said.

"Well, you were going to ask us something?" he asked.

"Oh, yes; we want to know if in any way we can always be happy?" they asked together.

"But hadn't you come to the House of Secrets to ask other questions? Didn't you want to be leaders?" Master Thoughtfulness asked them.

The boy looked at the girl.

To think that they had adventured so far and for so long and that when they had reached the House they had forgotten what they had come for.

But now that they were at the House they found that they didn't care so much to be leaders.

They liked instead to do things with others, and to share pleasures and adventures and besides, they thought, if one was a leader there wouldn't be half the fun as it had been with so many leaders and guide-posts and all as they had met.

They had met so many more, too, in the House.

"We wanted to be leaders," said the girl, "but for my part, now I'd rather be happy. I don't mean to say that mine mightn't be happy if I haven't the same ambitions I started out with, I guess."

"Neither have I," said the boy.

"Ah," said Master Thoughtfulness, "you have learned the secrets of the House of Secrets:

"For you have seen the rooms where all work together and play together and where each is so happy considering the other and yet trying to make something of themselves, too.

"Yes," said Master Thoughtfulness, "you will both be happy, really happy, for you've both adventured along the road and you've learned real secrets."

"And," said the Courier, "though you don't know it now, you will when you stop to think about your trip. Remember that it takes so many different people and still so many different people to make up a world.

"We need all our friends like Master Thoughtfulness here, Mrs. Get-the-Most-out-of-Life, the Brownie Joy and all. No one of them tries to be the leader, for each one wants the help of the other."

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, July 11.—William Hausmann wife and daughter of New York, who have been boarding with the Johnsons, No. 5 Bloomer street, have gone to Cairo for about four weeks and then will motor to Niagara Falls before going back to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Constant of Ellenville are spending a few days with E. N. Baxter of Mountaindale.

Miss Delilah Morse is spending a two weeks' vacation in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hoornbeck arrived in town Tuesday afternoon coming by auto from Ocean City, Md., having left there Sunday afternoon, following a week's visit. They expect to spend two or three months in Ellenville making their headquarters with Mrs. White Terwilliger on upper Market street.

Mrs. Minnie Vantrew and daughter have gone to spend some time with her sister at Hasbrouck.

Arthur V. Hornbeck and wife, who are touring Europe, were at Monte Carlo. They have visited the battle fields of France and other interesting localities previous to going to Monte Carlo.

Christie Sherry of East Orange spent Sunday with his wife at the Sherry home on upper Center street.

A hearing will be had on the Sunday baseball proposition before the board of trustees next Tuesday evening at the village hall.

Many Ellenville friends will congratulate Miss Margaret McGowan, daughter of James McGowan, and the late Mary Connelly, of Ellenville, on having won a $2,500 scholarship in Trinity College. Miss McGowan lives with her uncle, James E. Connelly in Washington, and recently graduated from the Notre Dame school and won the scholarship in competition with all the schools of Washington.

Miss Gladys Decker has accepted a position with the Terwilliger agency.

R. G. Simpson and family spent the week-end in Liberty.

Cornelius Cleary and family arrived in town Wednesday stopping at the Mitchell House.

George Freer has just finished a neat bungalow for Edward Rippert at Ulster Lake.

Paul Wintish has completed his reservoir and has broken ground for his new house on his lot on Cape avenue.

Mrs. Schmonses and two children are visiting her mother, Mrs. J. M. Clair.

William Clay and wife with their daughter and son-in-law, have been spending a few days at the home of Mr. Clay's brother-in-law, Horace Terwilliger on upper Centre street.

James Myers who sold Terrace Hill House to Hebrews, says they are entertaining 125 guests.

Mr and Mrs D. Terwilliger and family of Middletown spent the week-end in Ellenville with friends.

It Wasn't Clarence.

Clarence Clark, the courteous and efficient janitor of the National Ulster County Bank and the Avanee Building on Wall street, was not responsible for the firing up of the boiler in the Advance Building last week and the treat of steam heat while the thermometer hovered around the 90 degree mark. One of the employs in the Advance Building started the fire in the rubbish in the furnace. Although Clarence believes in keeping the tenants warm in winter he is willing that nature take care of the heat during the summer time.

COLONIALS LOST THEIR FIRST GAME

The Colonials of this city lost their first baseball game of the season on Sunday afternoon at Albany when they went down to defeat before the Dunns of the South Side by a score of 3 to 2. The Dunns, it will be remembered, met their first defeat of the season at the hands of the locals at the Athletic Field here recently, and there will probably be another game staged between the two teams. The summary:

GERMAN WAR CULPRIT TRIALS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Leipzig, July 11.—General Schack and General Kruska, former army officers, who are on trial today in the war criminals court, are accused of causing the death of 300 war prisoners by intentionally spreading typhoid germs in prison camps and refusing to allow preventtive meaures. If trials are finished in time the cases in which Great Britain appears as plaintiff will be resumed tomorrow. Among the prisoners against whom Great Britain will appear are Lieut. Dittmar and Lieut. Boldt, former submarine officers who are accused of sinking the British hospital ship Llandover Castle.

BRINNIER DIDN'T DRAW GAG LAW

Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier, who is the legal adviser of the city, was asked today by a Freeman reporter whether it was true that he had drawn the ordinance adopted by the common council last week regulating public parades, meetings and speeches.

Mr. Brinnier replied that he had not drawn the ordinance. In fact, said Mr. Brinnier, the first he had seen the ordinance and the first knowledge he had of such an ordinance was when he read it in The Freeman.

CARELESS IN CANOE.

Lads Escape With Wetting—Might Have Been Serious.

Two uptown youths on Sunday went to Kingston Point to enjoy an outing and while there went for a canoe ride. During the ride the old question of exchanging places in a canoe came up and when one of the youths refused to change his seat the other jokingly said he would tip the canoe over and gave it a gentle rock. The next instant both boys were in the water. Only one of them could swim but fortunately the other was able to seize the overturned canoe and hold on until the other lad who could swim had righted it. One of the lads had donned a new suit, shoes and hat for the afternoon and the appearance of the new outfit was not improved by the dip in the Hudson. What happened later in the day when the two lads returned home has not been learned.

Bonus Decision Wednesday.

A Real Optimist.

The other day we heard of a real optimist—a woman who stood watching her house burn down in a community with no fire protection and weak water pressure. She remarked: "Well, anyhow, I'm glad I went to the movies yesterday instead of washing my windows."

The Oldest National Park

The oldest of the national parks is the Hot Springs reservation in Arkansas, established in 1832. In its square mile and a half are 46 hot and several cold springs, valued since Indian days for their medicinal properties. It is but a short distance from Little Rock.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

"Think what would happen if the Light and Power Company which supplies your community with electricity suddenly ceased to operate ..... The motor-driven machinery in busy factories would come to a standstill. The many little power-driven contrivances which add to the convenience of your shop or home would be useless. Even the lights by which you work and play would be snuffed out.

"Yet the great service rendered by the Light and Power Company is too often forgotten. It has become so much a part of our everyday life that it is taken for granted. Only on the rare occasions when something goes wrong does the Light and Power Company receive even a passing thought; and that thought is perforce a damning one.

"In the light of actual facts, the Light and Power Company takes on an entirely different aspect. Its welfare and the welfare of the community as a whole are one and inseparable. The extent and character of the service it renders influences to a considerable degree the establishment of new industries. And the more widely that service is used, the cleaner and brighter the community will become, for electrical power is clean power.

"But the Light and Power Company has an even more important role. Upon the extension of its services into new territory depends the full development of the industrial, commercial and agricultural possibilities of a great part of the country. The vast power of thousands of streams and rivers is still unharnessed. Expansion is inevitable. Yet expansion without adequate capital is impossible. Light and Power Company securities offer unusual opportunities for the wise investment of surplus funds. So used, such funds will be engaged in promoting work of benefit to all, while at the same time they will yield gratifying returns and be as safe as the community itself.

"The welfare of the Light and Power Company and the welfare of the Community are one and inseparable."
